KNICKERBOCKER TRUST CO. FAILS TO MEET A RUN

Suspends Payment of Deposits After Withstanding Demands All Morning.

$7,000,000 IS PAID OUT

Great Sum Handed to Depositors Before Doors Are Closed.

BIG CROWD ON HAND

Payment Stopped After Public Was Assured Institution Was Solvent.

SECRETARY CORTELYOU ON WAY TO NEW YORK

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Acting upon advice from New York regarding the financial situation there, Secretary Cortelyou left for New York at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The Knickerbocker Trust Co., the second largest trust company in New York City, with deposits amounting to about $6,000,000, closed its doors at 12:30 this afternoon, following a steady run of persons who called to withdraw their deposits.

The company officials declared that the suspension of payment was only temporary. The closing of the doors of the institution was attended with sensational scenes at its main banking room and the Harlem Branch. Depositors who crowded the rooms clamoring for their money were informed that they were permitted to withdraw even a few dollars, and when this request was refused many refused to leave the building. Police assistance was necessary to preserve order.

At the main office, Fifth avenue and Thirty-fourth street, after the doors were closed the crowd surged its way inward. The police forced them back to the street again and from that time a guard was kept in front of the entrance.

The stock market was very weak and declined sharply, in spite of early efforts made to support prices.

At 96 Broadway there was considerable excitement when the office opened for business. A line of about fifty persons had gathered, and many were waiting to pay the teller's window to withdraw funds.

Second Vice-President Allen, who was in charge of the downtown office, gave out the following statement some time before the bank ceased paying depositors:

"There is nothing to be alarmed about. We have $5,000,000 of cash in the vaults and are prepared to meet all demands. The company is perfectly solvent."

Will Soon Be Over.

Mr. Allen said that the fears or alarm created by Mr. Barney's retirement from the presidency of the company will soon be allayed.

Shortly after the main office of the company, at Thirty-fourth street, opened for business, depositors began to arrive in still greater numbers.

At 10:30 more than 150 people were in line at the paying teller's window. The carriage line extended for more than a block from the bank. There was a short run from the Bronx branch of the company also. It was promptly stopped by the arrival of two wagons, from which were unloaded, in view of the waiting depositors, big bundles of specie and currency.

Clearing House Session.

The Clearing House Committee went into session shortly after 10 o'clock. It was announced that the deposit balances of the Mercantile National Bank and the National Bank of North America were so small that neither required assistance of the clearing house.

Charles T. Barney, brother-in-law of the late William C. Whitney, resigned the presidency of the company after the National Bank of Commerce served notice that it would not "clear" for the trust company, as it has done for many years past.

Frederick L. Eldridge, one of the trust company's directors, is in a private hospital with a broken leg and other injuries. Rumor says he attempted suicide by jumping out of a window. He and his friends indignantly deny this and say he tripped and fell down the steps at his home.

The Knickerbocker Trust Co. troubles result largely from the fact that President Barney had a few days before resigned the presidency of the company after the National Bank of Commerce served notice that it would not "clear" for the trust company, as it has done for many years past.

Mr. Barney's resignation in hand, and his promise to retire from the directorate of the trust company and of the National Bank of Commerce, the committee met their associates and sent the withdrawal.

Mr. Barney had declined to be present. When the directors were assembled they demanded that Mr. Barney be present to make full explanation. A cab was secured and in it several of the directors went to Mr. Barney's home, at the corner of Thirty-eighth street and Park avenue and an hour later they entered the meeting room with Mr. Barney.

He was asked to make a full explanation of his affairs so far as they would in any way affect the trust company, the National Bank of Commerce, the fact that none of his associates were in the trust company and that his dealings with Mr. Barney were in the real estate field.

The directors then went into the affairs of the trust company and reported "a clean bill of health."

GIRLS LOVE THE SOLDIERS, MUSTACHED OR OPEN-FACED

Each Follows Own Choice of Facial Adornment or Barrenness.

WHAT OFFICERS SAY

Some Bring Up Sanitary Plea for Dodging Hirsute Accessories.

BY ROSE TILLOTSON.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Army officers stationed on Governor's Island are divided on the mustache question.

Some, like King Edward, believe a warrior should wear a crop of hair upon his upper lip. Others are outspoken for the open-faced soldier.

Just to what extent the likes and dislikes of the American girl influence the opinions of officers in this country on the whisker problem does not appear, though there seems to be no doubt that England's efforts to compel her heroic defenders to sprout lip adornment have been thwarted by Miss Liberty's supposed preference for smooth-faced men.

There are not a few bewhiskered wearers of shoulder-straps in the service of Uncle Sam who smile knowingly when they hear it said that girls object to mustaches or even full-blown beards. They appear to doubt the alleged prejudice, and smack their hairy lips reflectively when told that pretty young women reserve their kisses for the man who visits the barber shop.

Need to Be Assured.

Perhaps, after all, they suggest, the Britisher has made a mistake in his estimate of what the girl from the states is looking for. She may shy at the first sight of a stubby mustache, fearing for the moment it might mop the peachblow from her cheek. But, say these friends of the mustached fighting man, she only needs to be assured, and they add that the Englishman has probably hurried out for a shave because he didn't know how to furnish the assurance.

When it comes to determining whether a mustache adds dignity to the warrior there is again a split in opinion. But hear what the officers themselves have to say:

Capt. W. T. Johnson, a clean-shaven man, tall and of a soldierly bearing, was seen at his pretty cottage on Governor's Island.

"I don't wear a mustache, and for sanitary reasons," he said, evidently agreeing with the German doctor who recently condemned frowning lip trousers as germ bearing and disease breeding.

"Over in the Philippines I discovered that minus a mustache I was far healthier, and so I shied mine while here. However, it is all a matter of choice, and I think a mustache sometimes helps a fellow as a blessing in disguise instead of frowning upon as a preventive of osculation."

Whiskers as Beauty Aid.

"With a full-grown crop of whiskers hiding a multitude of sins and a well-trimmed crop of whiskers making a man look like a soldier, I believe the English soldier, I personally believe mustaches are unsanitary and prefer the unadorned lip."

Maj. John S. Mallory, who boasts of a well-groomed mustache in varying shades of gray, thinks that much dignity is added by a goodly growth of hair upon the upper lip.

"The mustache is sure to lend dignity to an officer," he said, stroking his well-kept specimen. "The English army has always maintained that a soldier is not half a soldier without some lip adornment. In our army opinion is divided about half and half, every man to his own taste, and there is no rule restricting us in the least. I believe a mustache adds greatly to military appearance in an officer, for it suggests years of experience and wisdom, which the younger soldiers respect."

The Stubby Sort.

Capt. G. H. Davis also goes in for the mustache, although he doesn't think they are much on adding dignity. He is small, with a good-natured, beaming face and wears one of the short, close-clipped kind.

"A soldier minus whiskers is just as good as one with them; and as for the American girl's preference, well, maybe that is the reason you see so many beardless boys. There's a perfect epidemic of smooth-faced chaps in our army and I never could figure out the cause of it. However, I'll cling to my crop."

Capt. Aspell, who has been a member of the Old Guard since 1873, and is today a fine specimen of American soldier, wears a small mustache of snowy whiteness.

"I think the American girl objects to a mustache," he repeated. "Well, I am not up on the game and can't say. I think a soldier's appearance is not dignified by a growth of hair, though I have worn one in many years. Uncle Sam is not apt to ever interfere with a man's personal appearance, and I think he mustache will come and go on as he pleases. Everyone has his own idea of beauty, and I suppose cultivates or discards lip adornment according to his own personal needs."

Attorney-General Wants to Know About Late Telegrams

Suit in Oklahoma to Force Western Union to Explain Delays.

GUTHRIE, O. T., Oct. 22.—Suit for an alternative writ of mandamus has been filed by Attorney-General W. C. Croom, west against the Western Union Telegraph Co. The legal action is to secure an answer from the officials of the corporation as to why business offered for transmission has been delayed or refused, as alleged by affidavits considered by the Department of Justice.

The company defendant is given until Oct. 21 to answer. In the event of disobedience of the ultimatum the corporation will be proceeded against for contempt.

The suit of the Attorney-General commands the company "to transmit and deliver all messages now in care and possession for delivery and afford the necessary facilities for the speedy and proper delivery of all messages tendered for transmission."

The papers cite that during the months of September and October the Western Union company used the mails for messages given them for transmission by wire, and that the company refused messages and still has in its possession business offered.

from Alton, Ill., from which city it was reported that at 6 o'clock a balloon believed to be the Pomern passed due north, traveling at the rate of about ten miles an hour. East Alton, at about the same time, sighted another balloon traveling in the same northerly direction.

Half an hour later, Salem, Ill., sighted two balloons, both apparently about 100 feet in the air and traveling fast. Salem is 72 miles east of St. Louis.

The first definite report, however, came from Ruggie's Hollow, near Mount Vernon, Ind., in which Capt. Chandler of the America dropped a note reading: "Please notify C. J. Glidden, postal starter of the Aero Club of St. Louis. Signed: Chandler, pilot." This was at 11:20 p. m. and at 12:47 a. m. a balloon, believed to be that of one of the German contestants, passed over Mount Vernon. This voyager was very high and seemed to be in an air current that intended to do what it could toward adding the supposed German to getting back to their native land at the expense of the steamship companies.

WHEN BUCKANEERS RULED THE SEA

Spanish Treasure Ships Prey of the Dutch, French and English in Turn.

The Dutch first and then the French played such havoc at the Azores with the returning plate ships that from 1585 a strong escort known as the Indian Guard met both the West and East Indian ships at those islands and conveyed them to Spain; the French then improved upon the Dutchman's method by sending a fleet to the New World in 1583 which sacked Cartagena and several other places on the Spanish Main, though all that was done by both French and Dutch was hardly more than sporadic, and until the English mariner marked the plate fleet for his prey the Spaniard hardly noticed his losses at the hands of others; but from the day Sir Francis Drake sailed into the Caribbean the galleon's security vanished, and her wake across the seas was fouled with drifting spars, shattered bulks and blazing wreckage.

Drake's Daring.

After a bold attempt upon Nombre de Dios, which he called "The Treasure of the World," Drake withdrew to a secluded spot and entered upon a system of predatory warfare that drove the Spaniard to distraction. How many galleons fell victims to his daring there is no means of knowing; the San Felipe and the Cacafuego, the glory of the South Seas, are but two of many charged up against him by the Spaniard, who lost nearly $2,000,000 in these captures alone; and how thoroughly he swept the seas we can only judge by the terror and panic the mere mention of the name El Drake inspired.

Through Straits of Magellan.

Drake sailed through the Straits of Magellan and burned and plundered his way up the west coast of South America, and in the frenzy aroused by this attack Spain put forth great efforts to fortify the straits, but from fraud and mismanagement the attempt failed. The reckless daredevil courage of the British sailor of this period has never been surpassed. Capt. Whiddon's attack upon a galleon fleet of 24 sails and the immortal fight of the Little Revenge when alone and unsupported, accounted for 17 out of the fleet of 53 heavy galleons before the waves closed over her deck, have been seldom paralleled and never surpassed.—From Article by John C. Fitzpatrick, in the November Scribner.

ALCOHOL USED BEFORE MERCURY IN THERMOMETER

Fahrenheit's Early Experiments as an Amsterdam Chemist.

There is one little instrument in which the interest of all classes of people in this country never diminishes through the changing seasons of the year, from the first day of January to the last day of December, says the Indianapolis News. It regulates the business pulse of the nation and is the shrine to which men of all occupations turn. And this little instrument is the thermometer.

Before the seventeenth century men could only judge of the amount of heat prevailing at any place by their perspiration, and could only speak of the weather in a very indefinite way as hot or very hot, cold or very cold.

In that century several attempts were made by scientific experimenters by means of tubes containing oil, spirits of wine and other substances to establish a satisfactory means of measuring heat, but none of them proved successful.

Even Sir Isaac Newton, who applied his great mind to this work, and also the noted astronomer Halley, failed in their efforts to produce a heat measurer.

It was reserved to Gabriel Daniel Fahrenheit, an obscure and poor man, a native of Danzig, then under Poland's protection, now a Prussian city, to give to the world the instrument which has proved to be so serviceable to mankind.

He had failed in business as a merchant and, having a taste for mechanics and chemistry, began a series of experiments for the production of thermometers. At first he made these instruments, using alcohol, but soon became convinced that the semi-solid mercury was a more suitable article to use in the glass tube.

Fahrenheit had removed from Danzig to Amsterdam, and there, about the year 1720, he made the mercury thermometer which has ever since been fashioned much like the original made nearly two centuries ago.

The basis of his plan was to work on the tube at two points, respectively, at which water is congealed and boiled and graduate the space between. He began with an arbitrary marking, beginning with 32 degrees, because he found that the mercury descended 32 degrees more before coming to what he thought the extreme cold resulting from a mixture of ice, water and salt ammoniac.

In some another point and so on indefinitely. The "tag" is evidently added to make the term sounder because of the unsatisfactory explanation for its presence has yet been received. "Squat tag" is a mighty good exercise to develop speed in charging and to enable a player to get control of his movements. While it is a very important thing for the Yale players, Coach Knickerbocker understands that it is not recommended for very fat persons.

KEITH NOT OVER ANXIOUS TO PITCH FOR $300 A MONTH

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Charles A. Keith, one of the holders of the American League's baseball franchises in St. Louis, will decide next spring whether he will continue to be a professional baseball player or become a student at Yale.

Keith, who is a young giant, was this season the mainstay in the pitcher's box of the Little Rock team of the Southern League. Manager McAleer of the St. Louis Browns purchased Keith's release contract, and notified Keith that, if he signed at all next spring, would be early enough to give the matter serious consideration. He may remain in England and give up professional baseball.

Keith's answer to McAleer's proposition was that he considered his services worth considerably more than $300 per month for the playing season of six months. Keith is a student at Yale, and has been offered a contract, and notified Keith that, if he signed at all next spring, would be early enough to give the matter serious consideration. He may remain in England and give up professional baseball.

GOODS SEIZED AS NEW MEANS OF TRUST FIGHTING

Federal Officer Takes Cigarette in Transit, Under Sherman Act.

ARE VALUED AT $7277

Tobacco Combine Must Go Into Court and Prove Its Innocence.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—A new and seemingly effective weapon was used against the Tobacco Trust, when, at the instance of Attorney-General Bonaparte, a consignment of cigarettes, the property of the trust, was seized while in transit from the factories of the British-American Tobacco Co. at Petersburg, Va., and Durham, N. C., to New York and foreign countries. The seizure was made by the Collector of Customs at Norfolk by direction of the Secretary of the Treasury at the request of the Attorney-General.

The shipment consisted of 175 cases containing 5,750,000 cigarettes, valued at $727.50. These goods will be sold at public auction and the proceeds turned into the treasury.

Authority Under Sherman Law.
The seizure was made under authority of section 6 of the Sherman anti-trust law, which provides that "any property owned under any contract or by any combination, or pursuant to any conspiracy mentioned in section one of this act, and being in the course of transportation from one State to another or to a foreign country, shall be forfeited to the United States and may be seized and condemned by like proceedings as those provided by law for the forfeiture, seizure and condemnation of property imported into the United States contrary to law."

This is the first time that proceedings have been taken under this section of the Sherman law, and it is believed at the department that it will prove a salutary lesson to the trusts. In the future this provision of the law will be enforced vigorously.

Trust, Not Individuals.
The present proceeding is against the property itself and not against individuals. If the owners of the property desire to make defense they must go to court, claim the property and file written pleadings denying the charges that they have violated the law, and show that there is no combination in restraint of trade as charged by the Government. The papers in the case were filed in the United States Circuit Court at Richmond. In them the Government charges that the property was owned under a contract entered into in 1907 by the American Tobacco Co. and the American Cigar Co. with three great English concerns—the Imperial Tobacco Co. of Great Britain and Ireland, Ltd., Ogden, Ltd., and the British-American Co., Ltd.

It is charged by the Government that in these contracts it was agreed substantially that the American and English companies should not compete with one another in the territory apportioned to each. In effect, the corporations divided up the world among themselves so far as the tobacco business is concerned. It is also charged that the tobacco was owned by a combination in restraint of trade.

WOMAN WHO CAUSED ARREST OF HER HUSBAND AND GIRLHOOD CHUM

The discovery of a picture, not her own, in the case of her husband's watch, caused Mrs. Anna McBride of 313 New Ashland place first to suspect him and her girlhood chum, Miss Lena Lindert.

The two are now under arrest in Fort Worth, resisting Mrs. McBride's attempts to bring them back to St. Louis through a requisition issued on the Governor of Texas.

BOY STUBBED HIS TOE AND YELLED FOOT WAS CUT OFF Trifling Accident in Crowd at Balloon Ascension Caused Excitement.

When Francis O'Reilly, a school boy, aged 11, of 3500 Cass avenue, stubbed his toe while watching the balloon races it caused more excitement than usually results even when men's legs are cut off.

Policeman John O'Donnell, on duty in the crowd watching the balloons start, heard weird yells. He struggled through the crowd and found O'Reilly, who shouted that a street car had run over his foot. The brave officer hurried to a telephone, pushing and struggling through the crowd. Then he struggled back, picked the boy in his arms and struggled out again, laying the lad in the ambulance, which came in a hurry. At the City Hospital the shoe and stocking were taken from the boy's foot. The surgeon was amazed. There was not even a scratch on the foot. He searched closely and finally found a tiny contusion on the little toe.

"Now, it wasn't a street car," said Francis. "I just stubbed my toe."

Englishman Drops a Letter.
Dave Slupsky of Union and Waterman avenues picked up a letter Monday afternoon, dropped from the English balloon. It was addressed to Miss Constance Leade, 15 East Terrace London, N. W. It contained a 5-cent stamp and a request that the finder mail it at once. Slupsky deposited the letter in a box within five minutes after it had been dropped.

MOCK BAPTISM FOR BABIES DEDICATED TO SOCIALISM

Australian Society Burlesques Christian Sunday School at Sunday Meetings.

MELBOURNE, Oct. 22.—Six babies were presented by their mothers recently to the cause of Socialism, at Guildhall, where one of the new Socialist Sunday schools have been established. The ceremony being intended as a burlesque on the Christian form of baptism.

Tom Mann, who is well known in England, stood on the platform in the place usually occupied by clergymen at baptismal services. Two children from the Sunday school, with red flags, formed an arch under which the parents of the infants took up their positions. Mr. Mann asked the parents whether they were willing that their children should be given up wholly to the International Socialist movement, and on affirmative replies being received, the infants were passed into his arms. He planned to their clothes red rosettes and streamers, on which were inscribed in gold letters their full names, date of birth and the title of the Socialist party.

Planting kisses on the chubby cheeks, Mr. Mann commended the action of the parents, exhorted them to fidelity to the principles of socialism, and handed the little ones over to their mothers. Six children were dealt with in this way.

HIS CLAIM FOR CONFISCATED BOATS PAID AFTER 30 YEARS

Fisherman is at Last Awarded $60,000 by the Canadian Government.

FINDLAY, O., Oct. 22.—John Bechtel of Carey, O., waited 30 years for a settlement with the British Government and then was awarded $60,000, the value of three vessels which that Government confiscated 30 years ago on a charge that Bechtel was fishing outside the limit. Bechtel is now 60 years old. He worked in Carey, O., shortly after the Civil War. He went West in 1880, re-mained for a time in Colorado, and then made his way to British Columbia and entered the seal fishing business. It was while he was seal fishing that his vessels were seized by British ships and confiscated on the charge that he was fishing outside the limit.

When the vessels were captured there were on board 1500 skins, valued at $4 each. Mr. Bechtel is now a resident of Vancouver, B. C., and is at the head of a firm manufacturing boats.

CAPTAIN NAT IS ALL READY

Herreshoff Thinks He Can Build Another Cup Defender.

BRISTOL, R. I., Oct. 22.—Capt. Nat Herreshoff is ready to design any kind of a boat ordered by members of the New York Yacht Club to defend the America's cup, should the challenge come from Great Britain, Sweden or any other country. If Capt. Nat has sufficient time at his disposal in which to depend upon to advance on his speed lines regardless of what measurement rules are adopted, and it is believed here that he has already two or three new wrinkles up his sleeve which he will apply if he gets an order to design and build another cup defender.

Even if arrangements for a race should not be effected until the last month of the year there is a provision for the cup and the club which holds it, may make any arrangements as to dates, courses, rules and sailing regulations, number of trials, etc., which they may decide upon in a mutual understanding, in which case the ten month notice may be set aside. The mutual agreement clause thus provides for carrying out the races, no matter how late in the preceding year the challenge question, may be disposed of.

SEPARATED ONE HOUR AFTER THEY HAD LEFT THE ALTAR

Cousins Now Ask That Their Marriage Be Annulled in Court.

SPOKANE, Wash., Oct. 22.—Five days after her marriage to Clifford Twitchell, Letta May Twitchell filed suit in the Superior Court petitioning an annulment. As the Twitchells are first cousins, the marriage was not valid.

The young couple did not know they were violating the statute when they became man and wife. They were married at 4 p. m. and separated within an hour.

The bridegroom is 19 and his bride a few months younger. They were related through their father and her mother being brother and sister. Their marriage was in the nature of an elopement. While both practically had been lifelong residents of Spokane they had not been thrown much in each other's company. During the last two years, however, they became quite chummy and their friendship grew into love.

As soon as the home folks heard of the wedding they notified the couple of the illegality and they parted company.

Got $50 by Double Swindle.
Edward Bierman, a junk dealer at 1209 North Twelfth street, and Leo Landau of the Globe Clothing Co., like to find a fair-haired man, 35 years old, 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighing about 200 pounds.

This person visited Bierman's junk shop at 3 p. m. Monday, representing himself to be "John O'Brien of the O'Brien Boiler Works." He contracted to sell Bierman a car load of junk, the junk dealer giving him a check for $50 to find the bargain. Later the fair-haired man purchased a suit of underwear at the Globe and was given $45.00 in change for his check. The police have been notified.

JILTED BY WOMAN, RICH CRIPPLE GIVES LIFT TO ART

Frenchman Leaves Big Fortune to Great Museum After Lonely Life.

PARIS, Oct. 22.—When a M. Andeoud died in Cairo, leaving a legacy, which came as a godsend, to the Louvre of $1,000,000, everyone wondered who the generous donor was. Nobody in the artistic world remembered his name. M. Arsene Alexandre, the art critic, has now found out the story of Andeoud's life, which was full of pathos.

He was a man of culture and kind heart, but of misshapen body. A passionate love in early life disappointed him, and thenceforth he renounced woman and mankind. He lived embittered in almost complete solitude, and by one dropped all his friends.

His morbid sensitiveness was such that in the one house where he used to go he took offense because one evening the mistress appeared in ball dress, and to his distorted fancy did so to mock him, and he never set foot in that place again.

His and was as pathetic as his life. He was advised to move to a warm climate and went to Cairo, making up his mind to die. He shut himself up there some years ago in one room, which he never left. Doctors told him that he was virtually committing suicide, and he died without having been out of his one room.

DANCE HALL MAN PAYS $25 FOR LETTING IN MINORS

Belleville Starts a Crusade to Enforce the New Law.

John Methe, proprietor of the Rudweiser Garden and Dance Hall at Belleville, pleaded guilty to violating the new Illinois dance-hall law and was fined $25 and costs by Justice Wangelin at Belleville Monday afternoon. The law forbids minors unaccompanied by parents attending dances at which liquor is sold or at balls run in connection with bars.

Chief of Police Neegen of Belleville says he is determined to enforce the new law. The Liederkreis Society, at whose hall many dances are held by every organization, has issued an order that hereafter any parties renting the hall will be held responsible for violations of the new law. The janitor has been instructed to evict any minors who attend dances in violation of the law.

Greatest Coat Sale St. Louis Has Ever Known

TO say that the opening of our great sale of $40 Wooltex Coats at $25 was a success is stating it lightly, for never in the history of St. Louis has a coat sale brought greater response. The values are greater than ever before, while the range of styles is so much more extensive that you cannot compare any past sale with this.

Once each year we hold this great sale of Wooltex Coats, and it's positively your only opportunity to purchase the most magnificent garments made in America at fifteen dollars less than the actual value.

Mere words are utterly inadequate to describe the exquisite style and grace of these magnificent $40.00 coats we are selling at $25.00. They have been adapted from the latest French fashions, yet retain the originality and practical features required by American women. For social occasions the WOOLTEX "Marchioness" coat is the only proper outer covering; for street and driving wear the WOOLTEX "Belmore" is correct.

The Wooltex material is the highest grade, all-wool fabric that can be produced. It has a rich, lustrous shade, and will hold its original color until the garment itself has outlived its usefulness. The name WOOLTEX is also a guarantee that the linings and other materials are of the finest quality. WOOLTEX coats come in all light evening shades, as well as every dark color.

Just as Expected

When we arranged with Cosmopolitan Magazine to undertake the remarkable distribution now under way in our book department we did not overestimate the importance of the event. We knew that the St. Louis public would be quick to take advantage of the unusual opportunity afforded them. To judge by the widespread interest aroused by Sunday's announcement the distribution will be even a greater success than we anticipated; and with good reason, for there is one and only one great National Work of Reference.

Century Dictionary & Cyclopedia & Atlas

It is only by the enterprise of Cosmopolitan Magazine that we are able to make this present extraordinary offer. Cosmopolitan wants fifty thousand new subscribers. To secure them quickly it is offering the Century as the one supreme inducement. Cosmopolitan has cut off all agents' commission; by eliminating the usual profits and by manufacturing an enormous edition has brought the price down—way down below anything hitherto possible.

The One Supremely Useful General Reference Work

Comprehends All Branches Of Knowledge

The Century is so planned and prepared as to answer quickly the questions and meet the needs of every one. It was necessary, therefore, that it should be not only the greatest dictionary and the best encyclopedia, but also a handbook of history, a gazetteer, a library of biographical and literary reference, a really complete atlas of the world, and so on; in short, a library that should sum up all existing knowledge in art, science, literature, history, biography, geography, trade, etc., etc.

As a Dictionary

The Century is by far the most comprehensive in the language, giving the latest results of scholarly research in the origin, spelling, pronunciation and meaning of words, amplified by 8000 illustrations, synonyms and more than 300,000 quotations.

The Great Question Answerer

In a word, The Century is the great "question answerer"—the shortest path into the whole realm of knowledge. It is the best of reference works, and by far the most useful to those so fortunate as to own it. You will find that those who have wisely purchased The Century do not suffer it to gather dust upon the shelves, as is the case with the old-style encyclopedias; but The Century volumes are at once given a place where they will be easily accessible for constant use by every member of the family.

As an Encyclopedia

The Century contains more than 150,000 encyclopedic articles, and covers the ground more thoroughly than any other reference work; for, in addition to scientific knowledge, it adds plain, every-day facts, usually omitted, and which is just the information most sought.

As an Atlas

The Century is the latest and best published. The wonderful ancient and modern maps, of which there are 310 in all, are entirely new, and with many features not in any other atlas. Recent political changes are shown, with many features not in any other atlas. The alphabetical index contains about 200,000 geographical entries, a number much larger than in any atlas or gazetteer ever before published. The maps are printed in from five to ten different colors, and are revelations of the modern mapmaker's skill.

Men's "Just Right" Clothing

"JUST RIGHT" clothing is better and handsomer than the majority of custom-made clothing. That is why men who wear it are supposed by their friends to be wearing custom made productions. Thousands of men pay 50 per cent more for their clothing than "Just Right" garments cost, simply because they cling to the old superstition of having their garments made to order.

Are you going to keep on this way?

That is YOUR question.

AIRSHIP PILOTS HERE FOR RACES BALDWIN "BOYS"

Veteran Aeronaut Tells of Young Men Who Graduated From School.

well Dixon Others.

BEACHEY THE GREATEST

G. H. Curtiss, the Latest, Will Sail Baldwin's New Twin Propeller Ship.

Graduates of Capt. Thomas Baldwin's School of Airship Pilots will take their examinations Wednesday before the committee of scientists assembled at the enclosure of the St. Louis Aero Club.
Lincoln Beachy, whom Capt. Baldwin pronounces his star pupil, leads the graduating class of bright young American sky pilots who have surpassed the world in daring and ingenuity.

Cromwell Dixon, the 14-year-old boy prodigy of Baldwin's "shorter" course to aerial fame, is among the class now in St. Louis. Baldwin points with pride to the genius of Cromwell, in his improvement with bicycle pedals over the heavier gasoline motor, which brought him the "California Arrow" into instant glory in the hands of Roy Knaben-schue, another of the Captain's young graduates.

The latest Baldwin graduate is G. H.
Curtiss, builder of motors, who will on Wednesday mount into the sky for the first time, astride the Captain's new wonder, the twin-screw airship. Curtiss is an advanced pupil on land, having conquered the world's record for the fastest mile on a motor cycle last winter at Ormond Beach, Fla.

Capt. Baldwin's "Boys."

"My boys have all left me to make their fortunes alone in the aerial profession," said Capt. Baldwin to a Post-Dispatch reporter Tuesday, while he was grooming his sky steeds for the contest tomorrow. "They have left me after slight disbursements, which have not altered in the least the good fellowship still existing among us. I bid everyone of them goodspeed in his individual efforts."

"I am all the more gratified by their several victories because I remember that they are daily perfecting the principle which I first evolved on this continent. Perhaps they will be glad to return to their teacher to learn something of the improvements I have since worked out."

"My first graduate was Roy Knaben-schue, who gave me a distinct place before the American public, when at the World's Fair in St. Louis I discovered at the last moment that I was too heavy a weight for my gas bag to carry into the air. Knabenschue fairly hugged me with joy when he was told that he must pilot the Arrow to fame. How well he did it is known to every American who glories in native conquest."

"I hailed Roy as king of the air after that achievement. I believed that no novice could ever equal his skill and courage. Later, the commercial sense suggested the money that could be made by giving airship exhibitions throughout the country, we differed for the reason that I desired to stick to the more serious scientific development of aerial navigation. He parted with me to

JUSTICE OF PEACE WRITES NEW, LONGER VERSE TO LURE MORE COUPLES TO CLAYTON

Old Couple Gave Him 300 Marriages and He Expects Additional Lines to Boom Business.

After experiments extending over a period of six months, Justice Werre-meyer of Clayton has decided that it pays to advertise. Acting promptly on his decision, he began Monday the posting of his latest appeal for lovelorn couples to embark on the "sea of marriage" from his port.

This new advertisement replaces his well-known couplet:
"Go choose the one you love the best,
Then come to Clayton for the rest."

The new verse reads:
"As these two hearts are intertwined
So may your lives be bound.
And when you've set the wedding day,
At Clayton I'll be found."

The reference in the first line is to two overgrown hearts, printed in brilliant red and pierced by an arrow so large that Cupid must have had the assistance of Hymen in discharging it.
The poetry, in blue, is printed boldly across the blood-red hearts and is followed by Justice Werremeyer's announcement of his business interest in courtship.

Justice Werremeyer has married more than 300 couples in the past six months and nearly 1000 couples have obtained licenses in Clayton since the Justice composed his famous couplet.

MINNESOTA MAYOR IS MISSING

W. W. Ward of Fairmount Disappeared in September.

A circular announcing the mysterious disappearance of W. W. Ward, Mayor of Fairmount, Minn., reached St. Louis Tuesday. It sets forth that Mr. Ward, who is 46 years old and father of a family, was last seen in St. Paul, Sept. 30.
On that date he stated he was going to return to Fairmount, as official business required his immediate presence there.

At the time of his disappearance Ward was serving his second term as chief executive of Fairmount. The circular states that Ward was somewhat involved financially, but not enough to warrant his sudden departure. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, Elks and Knights of Pythias. His wife and children are deeply concerned about him.

WOMAN VICTIM OF COCAINE HABIT DIED IN HOTEL

Mrs. Maggie Smith Succumbs Few Minutes After Entering Room.

WITH AN OLD ADMIRER

She Left Her Two-Weeks-Old Baby at Home With Her Husband.

COMPANION IS HELD

Father Out of Work and Unable to Care for Motherless Baby.

Mrs. Maggie Smith, mother of a 2-weeks-old boy, died in a room at the Lee-Roy Hotel, 519 Franklin avenue, 10 minutes after she had gone there with Dan Shaughnessy.

At her home, 1114 North Broadway, her husband held his motherless baby
Tuesday and denounced the proprietors of certain drug stores, whom he blamed for selling her the cocaine which he said had destroyed her regard for him and the infant.

Smith has been out of work for several weeks. Two days ago the baby's clothing was stolen from the house. He is without means of caring for the infant, and it will probably be placed in an institution.

Shaughnessy, who was a suitor of Mrs. Smith before her marriage, was held at the Carr Street Station to await an inquest into her death. He said Tuesday that he met Mrs. Smith at Broadway and Wash street at 8:30 Monday night, and that they went to the hotel, where he registered the names, "Mr.
and Mrs. Ryan."

Died Before Doctor Arrived.

A few minutes after they entered a room, Shaughnessy appeared in the hallway and called for a glass of water.

"She's choking," he said to the proprietor, John W. Johnson. "She sent me out for water."

When he re-entered the room, Mrs.
Smith was unconscious. While Shaughnessy and the proprietor were endeavoring to find a physician, she died.

Shaughnessy lives at the Broadway
House, Broadway and Wash street.

AIRSHIP MYSTERY CLEARED UP FOR MANY THOUSAND SKY GAZERS IN CITY

Seventy-Five Balloons Are Sent

Skyward and 500 More to Go Up During the Week.

The 50,000 or more people in and about Col. Dozier's balloon yard were not the only ones favored with a vision of balloons yesterday afternoon. At every corner downtown there was a crowd of skygazers. Many of whom saw one or more balloons high in the air. A large object looks small if far away, and it was easy enough for many of the observers to imagine that the balloons they were looking at were the Pommer, the Lotus, the Angel, the America or some of the other balloons of Col.
Dozier's outfit.

The mystery was explained this morning when a young man of South St.
Louis found a balloon or airship about 25 feet long in his back yard. Attached to it was a tag on which was printed or typewritten this notice:

Oct. 21, 1907.
Balloon Week, St. Louis, Mo.
To the Finder of This Tag: Return this tag either in person or by mail and receive in return a handsome box of our fine, delicious Chocolates and Nadia Caramels, mixed.

One of the gentlemen connected in an official capacity with this candy company admits that the establishment was responsible for about seventy-five of the eighty-four balloons viewed by St.
Louisans yesterday afternoon.

"We expected the Forest Park balloons to be carried West," said the gentleman, "and as we didn't want to see all these people downtown and in other parts of the city disappointed, we sent up a lot of our own, specially manufactured for this occasion. Today we are sending up 10 more, and every day this week will give another free show of the same kind."

The Aero Club balloons have been heard from in half a dozen states—Missouri,
Illinois, Kentucky, Indiana, Michigan,
Ohio, and we shall not be surprised if some of our 25-foot airships have been caught by the same currents and carried many miles from St. Louis."

The toy airships are sent up from the roof of the Blanke-Wenneker Candy Co.'s factory, at 68 Market street. Each one has a gasoline engine and a notice to the finder to return or send the tag not the balloon, to the Blanke-Wenneker Candy Co., and receive a box of confectionery.

BALLOON SPECTATOR OVERCOME

Mrs. C. H. Wetmore Is Affected by Fumes of Gas.

Fumes of gas at the balloon race starting point overcame Mrs. C. H. Wetmore, aged 60, of Kirkwood, and she was rushed to the City Dispensary in an ambulance about the time the balloons went up.

Dr. Graham of the dispensary said her condition was not serious. She was taken Monday evening from the dispensary to the residence of Mrs. Theodore Meyer, a friend, at 4938 Lindell boulevard.

Everybody Sees Balloons.
Missouri towns see balloons, or what looked like them, Tuesday. Early risers at Jefferson City, which is just outside the 100-mile circle from St. Louis, reported that they saw seven balloons. At Osage, west of Jefferson City, one was reported shortly after 7 a. m.
Dispatches from Gower, near St. Joseph, state that at 8:45 four balloons were seen there, moving slowly toward the northwest.

NEW "FOUR HUNDRED" SUED FOR NOT PAYING ITS TAXES

Collector Only Exhausts Alphabet As Far As
"G" In Action Already Commenced and Expects to Have 1000 More Cases.

St. Louis has a new, and somewhat variegated four hundred. They are the four hundred who have not paid their personal taxes. Vide 400 suits filed Tuesday in the Circuit Court by the State of Missouri at the relation of James Hazeman Jr., Collector.

Among the defendants are many who live on the boulevards and whose names appear in the blue book. And there are many who live elsewhere and who do not bother themselves about blue books.
They all look alike to the Collector and he has bunched them together, regardless of color, condition or coin, in alphabetical order.

The Collector is not to stop at 400. He will file more than four hundred more suits before he quits. The filings Tuesday only use the alphabet down to the letter G.

Thousand More Coming.
Including suits against delinquents on real estate taxes it is expected that the total will be something like 1400.

The amounts of personal taxes for which suits are brought, bespeak marked modesty: on the part of the new four hundred, not more than $25. Square links are used in the value of their personal possessions.
Most of the suits are for amounts of less than $50.

Only a few are as much as $40. Among those who pay less than $25 personal taxes and do not pay that until after they are sued, are not a few whose names adorn the blue book.

For the third time since its erection, in 1889, the Eiffel Tower is performing its toilet. It is as well that the process is not more frequent, seeing that it costs $15,000. For the first renewal the color was gold, but last time it was changed to gold. Now it is to be silver white from the third platform upward.
The work will be at work for three months, and 300 pintals of paint will be used.

MOTHER AND CHILDREN ALL NIGHT IN RAILWAY DEPOT

Failed to Meet Husband and Was Without Money for Breakfast.

East St. Louis police are trying to find Len Dawson who failed to meet his wife and three children upon their arrival at the depot in East St. Louis Monday night. Mrs. Dawson and the children are being cared for temporarily by Mr. Goff.

Mrs. Dawson, with her three children, aged 5, 3 and 1 years, arrived at the depot from Paris, Ill. Monday night, and stayed there all night. A policeman took up a collection for the family and bought them breakfast Tuesday. He then took them to Supervisor Goff's office.

Mrs. Dawson told the officers that she received a letter from her husband telling her to come to East St.
Louis Sunday and he would meet her.
She says she did not receive the letter until Monday, and immediately started.

Great Chains for Ships.

For mooring the Lusitania and Mau-reclia in the River Mersey 15-ton anchors are used and the mooring weighs over 30 tons. The four-bridle chains are 75 feet long. Square links are used in the construction of the main chain, each weighing 40 pounds and measuring four feet in length. The swivel connection for the bridle chains weighs 485 pounds and the shackles 150 pounds each. The buoy pendant is constructed of iron 4x and 2x inches in diameter. Popular Mechanics.

THE PENALTY OF OVERWORK

Work has been man's lot since the creation, but a day of toil should not have its penalty of pain. Why is it, then, you ask, that backache so often follows? It is because the modern tendency is to overwork, to tear down faster than nature can rebuild. An unnatural strain is thrown upon the vital organs, and more especially upon the kidneys, which have the work of filtering the blood free of waste and poison.

The heavy tax of overwork—the strain upon the back that is so common to many trades and occupations—is too great. The kidneys begin to fail in their work, and there is a double danger to health. The poisonous matter collects in the system, and the kidneys themselves begin to break down.

Pain in the back is only a warning of trouble in the kidneys. An inflammation has set in, and a dis-ordered condition of the urine soon becomes apparent.

If your work seems hard for you,
if you have a lame, weak or aching back, if you seem tired and listless and seem to be running down without apparent cause, begin at once with Doan's Kidney Pills, the great kidney remedy that has cured so many of your neighbors. It has given thousands of working men and women strong, sound backs for their daily work.

ST. LOUIS PROOF.
Charles E. Dubbs, 2332 Russell Av., St. Louis, Mo., says: "I am willing to testify to the good results that I received from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. For about three years I was a great sufferer from kidney disease.
My back ached constantly and at times so severe that I was unable to attend to my work. I was much bor-tered with dizzy spells and at night
I could obtain but little rest. I was in a bad shape physically, and very much discouraged when I procured Doan's Kidney Pills. That remedy made me well and strong and I am now able to walk as far and as well as any young man. This was five years ago and I have had no return of the trouble. I spent hundreds of dollars in the effort to find relief, but the first real benefit I received was from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills."

O, BUT TEDDY'D ENJOY HUNTING WITH SHEEHAN!

Tenor in "The Bohemian Girl" Kills Stag With Remarkable Shot.

RUNNING, GUN DOWN

Then He Sings Falsetto and Comes Near Being Distanced by Others.

WINS OUT, HOWEVER

Homer Lind and Bertha Shalek
Distinguish Themselves—
Columbia's Bill.

If Joe Sheehan had his rights he'd have been hunting bears with President Roosevelt in the Louisiana swamps during the past two weeks, because he's a wonderful shot. As "Thaddeus, the Pole," he knocked the perambulator in "The Bohemian Girl" at the Odeon last night by killing a stag with a rifle held loosely in his hands as he ran—didn't have to put the gun to his shoulder or hip or any old place in particular.

We know he killed the stag, for he sprang off the stage and reappears the next minute with little Arline, daughter of the Count Aradheim of Freshburg, in his arms, and we had already been told that the stag had attacked Arline and was doing his best to cut an antler-monogram on her tender flesh. It was a great feat of marksmanship—I don't believe anybody but a grand opera tenor under a severe strain of excitement could have accomplished it.

In addition to slaying the stag, Sheehan also made another killing with his voice, barring the fact that he saved it at a critical moment by singing the second stanza of "Then You'll Remember Me" in a gentle little falsetto much more comforting to himself than to his audience. And this was a dangerous thing for him to do, because other voices were making big hits last night and he behooved the star to get up and hustle if he would hold his place in the stellar firmament.

Homer Lind's voice was one of these. "Thaddeus the Pole" was another. Of course, Thaddeus is a singer in "The Bohemian Girl," but he's lost more than one trick to the king and queen-of-gypsies last night, and I'm not sure that they didn't have the honors to their credit at the Odeon. Homer Lind sang splendidly, letting out his smashing voice with light and with tremendous effectiveness, and, for a time, Bertha Shalek entirely dominated the situation, so compelling is the combination of her rich voice and exceptional dramatic power. Then, too, Alan Turner covered himself with glory from head to foot by singing of "The Heart Bowed Down," and Anna Lichter sang "I Dreamt That I Dwell in Tharsus Hall" so sweetly that no Thaddeus on earth could have refused to leave her still the same—unless "still" meant silent.

Really and truly, it was no time for Sheehan to be "soldiering" with his voice, even though, before and after that second stanza of "Then You'll Remember Me," he did his level best. Remembering him is all right—but not as a falsetto singer when others are fairly chanting the ground from under his feet. It means peril to Sheehan.

The orchestra was at its worst last night, and Director Liebsgang must have rejoiced at the house's intelligent appreciation of its exquisite work in the opening of the second and third acts, the orchestral gems of the evening. The chorus did well, save that it got out of time once or twice and sent the good Herr Liebsgang into paroxysms of calisthenics with his corrective bawl. Somewhere in the last night's quarrel there's a fine basso and a clear, meaningful tenor whose voices are simply an anonymous delight—maybe they will emerge from the chorus some day and we'll know who they are.

Certrude Vanique, a newcomer, will sing Arline tonight.

Bright Features on Columbia's Bill. Eva Tanguay is the topline of the Columbia's new bill, which opened yesterday afternoon, and she's a marvelous example of the "perpetual motion" substitute, but the real star on the program is Thomas J. Ryan as Elie Haggerty in "Max Haggerty's Reception," which he plays with the assistance of Miss Richfield and Phineas Fanning. Ryan, however, is so true to nature in his portrayal of a homely and lovable old Irishman that I'm afraid he doesn't make quite the impression he would if there were more of the bunks and con- science game and gold brick trick in his methods—we do so love to be hum- bugged, you know. Other features on the bill, and most of them worth while, are Prof. Barnard's marionettes, the Seals and Violet Allen company, in "The Traveling Man," Emil Hoch and company, in "Love's Young Dream," the Moto Girl, a very clever human au- tomaton act, Belle Hathaway's labious and monkeys and William Tomkins. The latter is remarkable and finely re- freshing because of the fact that there's a deal of real wit in his topical talk.

DECLARED INSANE, SHE SUES EXPERTS

Author and Educator Receiving $6000 Yearly Committed to an Asylum.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Ellen K. Kenyon-Warner, a prominent educator and author of school books, is suing for $50,000 damages because she was committed to an asylum. Dr. Flavius Pack- er and Dr. Sidney D. Wilgus, who, in 1904, adjudged her insane, and upon whose certificate Judge William J. Gaynor issued the commitment, are the defendants.

Involved in the trial is the unusual legal question whether physicians who act as examiners in lunacy cases are liable to damages in the event of error in certifying that a person is insane.

Husband Commits Suicide.
Elmer E. Warner, an electrical engineer of Brooklyn, was the husband, and his motive for having his wife placed in an asylum was to sell her property. It is alleged. On Feb. 9, 1905, seven months after he had put his wife in the asylum and two months after she had been discharged from the institu- tion, Warner committed suicide in the Manhattan Hotel, 1224 street and Third avenue.

The defendants are widely known as alienists. Dr. Packer is proprietor of the Knolls, a private sanitarium in Yonkers. Dr. Wilgus, who is a brother of William J. Wilgus, chief engineer of the New York Central, is at the head of the State's Board of Alienists. He is now in the Colchester for the winter. Mrs. Joy returned home from California and Colorado, where she has been for several months, last week.

Duaghter of Newspaperman.
Mrs. Warner, who is better known among educators by her maiden name of Ellen E. Kenyon, is the daughter of James Percival Kenyon, a Brooklyn newspaperman. She and her brother, Walter Kenyon, now an authority on manual training in San Francisco, were among the pioneers in the movement for educational reform that swept over the country 25 years ago.

At the time of her commitment to the asylum, July 14, 1904, Mrs. Warner was receiving about $6000 a year in royalties from her school books. She was then under contract with D. Appleton & Co. to prepare for publication a series of readers. Several volumes were pub- lished and, as witnesses testified in the new City Court, they were popular.

On her release from the asylum D. Appleton & Co. is alleged, refused to continue the publication of her books. She was generally reputed to be insane and her reputation as an authority on educational matters had been greatly impaired. Therefore, Mrs. Warner does not regard $50,000 an unreasonably high estimate of the damages she incurred through the act of Dr. Packer and Dr. Wilgus.

In order to connect the oil fields in the Indian Territory with the Texas gulf coast, a remarkable feat has just been achieved. In six months 450 miles of 8-inch pipe were laid—150 miles through the Indian Territory, 250 miles through Texas to Sour Lake, where connection is made with the pipeline in length, leading to the refinery and docks. It will take 125,000 barrels of oil to fill this pipe. Another line, 270 miles in length, is also nearly completed.

Growth of Rural Delivery.
It is now only 14 years since an ap- proximation of $10,000 was made for ex- periment with the project of rural free delivery. As recently as 10 years ago the approxi- mation for this new service amounted to only $40,000. Last year it was more than $25,000,000. While this year rural free delivery will cost $37,000,000.

The defendants are widely known as alienists. Dr. Packer is proprietor of the Knolls, a private sanitarium in Yonkers. Dr. Wilgus, who is a brother of William J. Wilgus, chief engineer of the New York Central, is at the head of the State's Board of Alienists. He is now in the Colchester for the winter. Mrs. Joy returned home from California and Colorado, where she has been for several months, last week.

of Men.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Oct. 22.—The matron of one of the Smith College, houses, Miss Roderick Canfield, and Miss Ruby Litchfield of Southbridge, a member of the junior class, had a thrill- ing experience on Paradise Pond, a fa- vorite resort of the college girls.

The two were rowing when their boat struck a snag and capsized. Miss Canfield could not swim, but Miss Litchfield could not, and when the boat upset Miss Litchfield was under it. Miss Canfield swam to shore and gave the alarm that Miss Litchfield was drowned; then, ahead of all others, Miss Canfield swam back to the boat. She found Miss Litchfield alive and clinging to the beam of the boat, her head just above water.

Miss Canfield swam and pushed the boat ashore with Miss Litchfield holding on, just as college employees and the Chief of Police arrived.

SAYS DR. KIER

BY IMOGENE ARNOLD

Isn't that Dr. Cabot of Harvard just the loveliest man? He is the one who said in a recent lecture at Jacksonville, Ill., that lots of people who are called lazy aren't lazy at all—they are "ill."

When we are lazy at the age of 14, we are just growing.

Mamma never seemed to believe that, somehow, although I assured her often that such was the case.

How busy I used to get, growing, when I heard the call of the dishpan! And when it came time to "clean myself up" again in the afternoon, it's a wonder they didn't just see me grow. But I guess it does seem queer to her that all that growing only made me five feet tall.

I was so de-lighted when I read Dr. Cabot's speech that I hurried right out to Dr. W. F. Kier's to see what he thought about it. But it was to such, for Dr. Kier doesn't think "so" at all.

Stick Not Ill-Theated.
"I don't think many sick people are very badly abused because people think they are lazy," he said, in tones of finality.

"Some people are too lazy to get out of bed and wash their faces, yet if they were urged or compelled to do so, they would go ahead and do a hard day's work easily and well."

If they were ill alone and coddled for sickness, they would lie in bed, and dirty faces all day, or else magnanimously allow someone to wash them for them. And, too, when the average person is ill he knows it, and so does everybody around him. They don't have to spend much time distinguishing it from laziness.

"But what would you do, Dr. Kier, if you had a growing son of 14 or so, and he should decline to chop the wood? Wouldn't you feel sorry for him and consider it your duty to help him grow?" "Yes, indeed, I should consider it my duty," he replied, "and I should perform it religiously, too. But it wouldn't be done with a teddy and a hot-water bottle. A birch stick would be more effective."

"But isn't laziness sometimes a sign of the need of a tonic?" I asked in desperation.

"We'll," he said dubiously, "it might possibly denote a need of iron in the blood."

"Well, how and to what degree is laziness recognized by physicians?" I asked.

"There is a certain condition of the blood which sometimes causes the condition commonly called laziness," he returned. "If you like, I will tell you exactly what that condition is."

"Of all things," I replied, "a definition of laziness is just what I do want."

Authority for the Theory.
To make doubly sure, he read it to me out of a book. I copied it verbatim and asked him how to spell all the hard words. I would advise you to memorize it, for Dr. Kier says it is technical enough to sound wise, yet simple enough to be understood by most everybody. It follows:

The condition called laziness is a want of the proper opsonin in the blood, either in quantity or quality. Opsonins are a substance not yet isolated, but known to exist in the blood. Their purpose is to unite with bacteria and prepare them for the leucocytes to attack and destroy. Without this preparation the fastidious leucocytes refuse to ingest the bacteria, and so this defensive power of the organism is in abeyance.

Aren't those leucocytes the snippy things, I thought? Won't work unless the bacteria are all prepared for them. But, anyhow, I wonder where we can get those opsonins? I am very badly in need of some, but I shall never again say I feel lazy. Oh, no! I shall merely state that I am in need of some opsonins.

The rights and duties of ambulances were passed upon by Justice Wangelin at Belleville Tuesday morning in the damage suit of Philip Webber against Frank C. Bux, a Belleville undertaker. JUDGE CALLS
HUSSEY A "SAD COMMENTARY"

Delegate Is Fined $10 for Disturbance After His Fortieth Arrest.

SHOWS CIVIC TREND

Hussey's Language to Police Captain in Station House Is Chief Evidence.

Passing judgment on Frank Hussey, House of Delegates member for the Twenty-second Ward, Tuesday, Acting Judge Sanders of the Dayton Street Police Court said:

"It is a sad commentary on the trend of civic affairs when a City Father is brought into court on a charge like this. The defendant is fined $10."

Hussey was accused of disturbing the peace at the Manchester Avenue Police Station Oct. 9. It was his fortieth arrest.

Capt. Gaffney of the Manchester District testified that he had ordered Hussey's arrest immediately after the offense, because he "had a reason."

William P. (Sport) Brady, sergeant-at-arms of the House of Delegates, was Hussey's principal witness.

Hussey's Language Quoted.

The language which Hussey used in the Police Station when he went to give bond for his friend, Thomas McTague, accused of theft, was the main feature of the evidence. Much of it was repeated in the early stages of the trial and none of it would sound good in a parlor.

When "Sport" Brady took the stand City Attorney Levy looked at him closely. Brady looked belligerent and showed signs of turning loose something picturesque in the line of forcible language. He had already leaned forward, showed his lower jaw forward and said: "Judge, I'll tell you just how it was" when Levy waved his hand.

"Wait a minute," he commanded. "Turning toward the clerk's desk he said to her: 'Miss Ross, I will have to ask you to leave the room.'"

Miss Ross also looked at the witness. Jealously only an instant, she took the Prosecuting Attorney's tip.

"Now, I guess I can go on," said Brady. And he did.

"I went to the Manchester station with Hussey about 1 o'clock the afternoon of Oct. 9," said he. "They had Tommy McTague locked up and we wanted to get him out."

Says Policeman Cuffed.

"When we were going through the stable back of the station, Patrolman Smythe called Hussey a lot of names."

Brady, fortified by the absence of the young woman clerk, repeated the names. He said Hussey might have called Smythe a "few things."

Hussey, testifying in his own behalf, said that he went to the station with a Circuit Court bond, authorized by Judge Muench, and that though two sergeants, a clerk and two telephone boys were there, he was told that no one present was authorized to accept the bond in the absence of Capt. Gaffney.

"Every time one of my friends around Jefferson Avenue and Olive Street gets into the Manchester District police hold him 24 hours," said Hussey.

"Smythe was in the stable when I went in with Brady and Eddie Sheehan. He called me names and I could see right away that he was drunk."

"We waited until Capt. Gaffney came in and we told him that Smythe was drunk. He stood Smythe up in front of a lot of policemen and of course they said he was sober."

"They didn't arrest me till next day. Then they said I disturbed the police by using bad language in the station. That wasn't true. I never use bad language."

Capt. Gaffney testified that he was out when the disturbance occurred, but returned 45 minutes later.

Policeman Passed on Sobriety.

"Hussey and Brady came to see me as soon as I got back," said he. "Smythe was there, too. I couldn't smell anything on his breath and I left it to the other policemen there to say whether he was drunk and they said he wasn't. I didn't have any report made because I didn't think it was necessary. If I had been there when the disturbance occurred I would have arrested Hussey on the spot."

"But you didn't arrest him," said Henry Rowe of Hussey's counsel.

"Not that day," said Gaffney.

"Why not?"

"Well, I had a reason," said Gaffney, looking at Judge Sanders as though he expected a ruling that this excuse was sufficient.

Saw City Attorney.

Pressed for his reason Gaffney said: "Well, I didn't know whether he could make a case against Hussey. I wanted to see the City Attorney first."

Hussey filed notice of an appeal. He says that in the higher court he will fight the case out on the ground that Gaffney either should have arrested him when the offense was committed or he should be charged with neglect of police duty.

ROOSEVELT TO ASK CONGRESS
FOR WATERWAY

In Vicksburg Speech He Promises to Urge "Canalization" of Mississippi.

WANTS BETTER LEVEES

Says Damage Inflicted Annually by Overflows Heavy Tax on Farmers.

VICKSBURG, Miss., Oct. 22.—In his next message to Congress, President Roosevelt will urge a large appropriation for the lakes-to-the-gulf deep waterway. He made this promise before a large gathering here in a speech which still further dimmed the Mason and Dixon line.

President Roosevelt's reception here was so cordial as to be a demonstration. Confederate veterans marched beside old Federal soldiers to the carriage to shake hands with the President. President Roosevelt was greeted by a reception committee of 100 on board a steamer, which was followed by many craft to the city. Through lined streets he was driven and then, after a trip through the National Cemetery, he was introduced by John Sharp Williams, senator-elect.

Roosevelt's Speech.

The President said, in part: "It is a good thing for an American President to travel over the country, not for what he can teach, but for what he can learn. I have twice been down in this alluvial delta of the Mississippi. In each case I came primarily for bear. (A voice: 'Did you get any?')

"The last time I got 'em; the first time, all I can say is that the bears and I broke even. I got as many of them as they did of me."

"But on each occasion I learned a lot that had nothing to do with bear hunting, and it seems to me that no American President could spend his time better than seeing for himself just what a rich and wonderful region the Lower Mississippi Valley is, so that he may go back—as I shall go back to Washington—with the set purpose to do everything that in me lies to see that the United States does its full share in making the Mississippi River practically a part of the sea coast (applause). In making it a deep channel to the Great Lakes from the Gulf."

"I wish to see the levees so strongly built as to remove completely from the minds of dwellers of those low lands all apprehension of a possible overflow. Mr. Williams, it has been suggested to me, that we need to construe the constitution broadly, in order to get power to do what I want."

Urges Levee System.

"I think I heard you mention that you are a good Federalist. I heard a man say once, a man whom I have never seen afraid of anything, that he was afraid of the Mississippi, that he was afraid to dwell by it and feel that it might overflow and overwhelm the land on which he might live. I wish to see the Federal Government build a system of dikes or levees down the Mississippi, which shall make the Mississippi, as safe as if he had a plantation by the Illinois, or the Hudson or the Red River of the North."

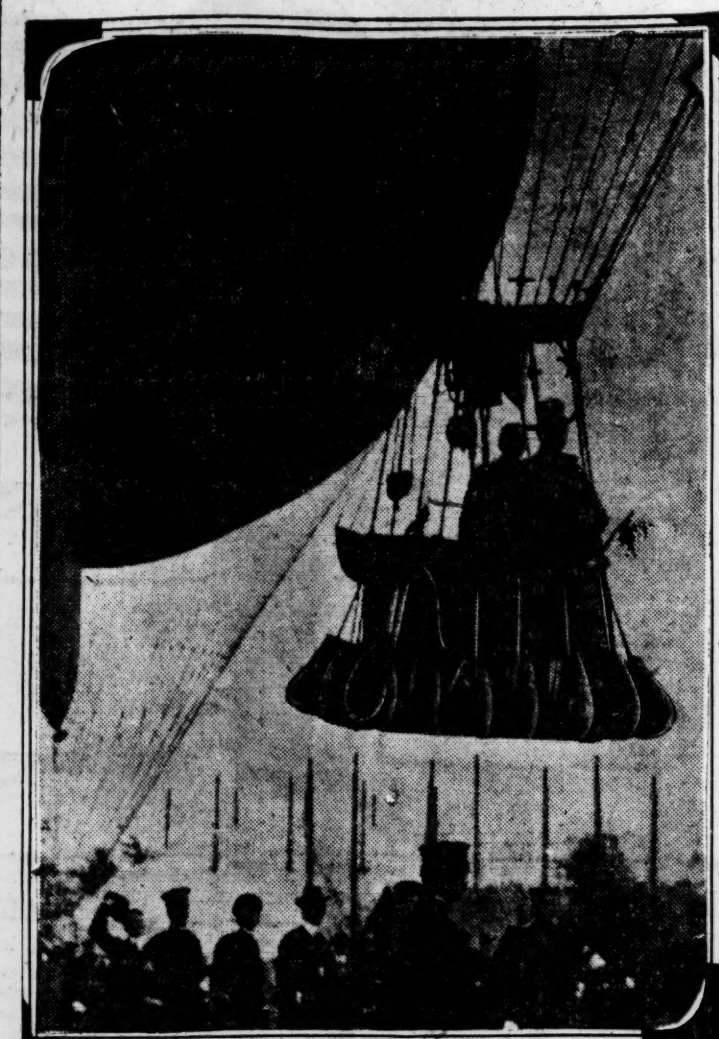

"I advocate the impossible task; no man can do it, but the people of Holland, a little nation, took two-thirds of their country from under the ocean, and they live behind the dikes now, and have lived behind them for centuries, in safety. With one-tenth of the effort we, an infinitely greater nation, can take the incomparably rich bottom lands of the Lower Mississippi out from all fear of even being overtopped by the Mississippi, while I do not like to say in advance what I intend to do, I shall break my rule in this case, and say that in my next message to Congress I shall advocate as heartily as I know how the first steps to bring about that deep channelway and the attendant high and broad levee system which will make of these alluvial bottoms the richest and most popular and most prosperous agricultural land not only in this nation, but on the face of the globe."

River's Damage a Tax.

"Ultimately, I believe, there can be an enormous spread of the activity of the national Government in the career of our waterways; ultimately, I believe that the national Government, for instance, can do an immense amount of irrigation through certain portions of the Southern States, not affected by the project for the deepening of the Mississippi of which I am now speaking, and confident that in most of the Southern States the loss to the farmer by the washing away of the soil of his farm, by the fact that the streams are at one period destructive torrents and at another period dry, is infinitely the highest tax the farmer has to pay."

"I believe that ultimately we shall be able to canalize, to deepen a very large number of streams, and in other ways, to take the big waters first. Take the Mississippi and its most prominent tributaries first."

IS A MILKSOP HUNTER"

Dr. Long Says No Healthy Bear Could Stand For the Roosevelt Noise and Would Run Its Heels Off Getting Away.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. STAMFORD, Conn., Oct. 22.—The Rev. Wm. J. Long, the nature writer, when asked if he had anything to say about President Roosevelt's recent bear hunt in the Louisiana canebrake, said:

"Oh, yes, a little to say and a lot to think," was his reply. "It is a fine specimen of Mr. Roosevelt's brand of nature study. He went into the canebrake, according to accounts, with six or eight professional hunters, two sure camp followers, camera men and a few dispatch bearers to carry out accounts of his heroism to a breathless world."

"There was lullaby enough to scare any bear from here to Texas. Some of them are probably running yet. Bear is the time, you know; they hate noise and excitement. It's a wonder that he got one bear, that he ever saw a fresh track. All the able-bodied bears 'skiddooed' at the first uproar so dear to the President's heart. Those that remained were probably cubs or invalids that lacked either the sense or the strength to get out."

Real Hunters, Brass Band.

"If a real hunter went down there now, a man that knows how to go into the woods quietly and hunt, he probably would get all the bears he wanted. But he would have to leave the brass band and the applauding gallery behind, and that Mr. Roosevelt cannot do. Hence his one poor bear."

Dr. Long was asked if he ever killed a bear.

"Yes," he answered; "eight or ten when I was younger, more of a hunter and less of a learner than now. I hunt alone, however—no guides, no dogs. A man who can't do his own hunting but must depend on professional hunters and dogs has not much right to an opinion about the habits of animals."

Doesn't it require a lot of courage to hunt big game?" he was asked.

"Courage, your grandmother!" Dr. Long exclaimed. "It takes some nerve to catch a chicken and wring its neck, but the courage consists not of facing the danger, but in overcoming your own heart's objection to the killing. I often have to hunt big animals for food when I am up north, but I never heard anybody but Mr. Roosevelt brag of his heroism."

"A bear, you know, takes to his heels and runs to break his heart when the dogs begin to yelp on his trail. When they tire him out and get close and begin to nip at his heels, most bears climb a tree if they can, a fat one often puts his back against a tree and fights the whole snarling, yelping pack."

"The Heroic Hunter."

"Then your heroic hunter comes up with his repeating rifle and a camera man to take his picture, and shoots the poor bear while he is wholly occupied with the dogs, and when he would be and could not notice the hunters if they started a cakewalk."

As a matter of fact this chasing a timid animal with a pack of dogs and then shooting him from a safe distance when he can't do a thing to save or defend himself, is pure brutal cowardice. Some men like it, but they don't brag. I have absolutely no criticism to make. Every man must be happy in his own way."

Did you notice that when the President finally killed his bear he is reported to have hugged somebody and to have given a big tip to a negro?" was suggested.

"Yes," said Dr. Long, "that's Roosevelt glorifying butchery as usual. With him the whole object of the hunt seems to be the killing. The funny thing is that presently he will be out with a magazine article, telling us all about the habits of Louisiana bears and incidentally calling 'flar' to some other man who has gone in the canebrake by a different route and seen more than he has."

"SAPPHO AND PHAON."

Doubtful if Kalich, in Mackaye Tragedy, Scores a Popular Success.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—In "Sappho and Phaon," a three-act tragedy in blank verse, presented last night at the Lyric Theater, Percy Mackaye, author, and Harrison Gray Fiske, producer, have unquestionably added materially to dramatic art in America. They presented Mrs. Bertha Kalich in the leading role.

The popularity of the play is another matter, as it is doubtful whether its appeal will reach a class large enough to give it an extended run.

Mrs. Kalich instantly proved that she has progressed, both in English diction and in dramatic art, since her last appearance on the English-speaking stage. Not the slightest trace of Yiddish dialect remained. In subtlety, charm of manner, personal magnetism and in force this woman who was given to Broadway by the Bowers has marched forward in giant strides. Her impersonation of the Lesbian poetess was careful, painstaking and studied.

Mr. Mackaye's story follows closely the accepted version. His Sappho is passionate and fervid.

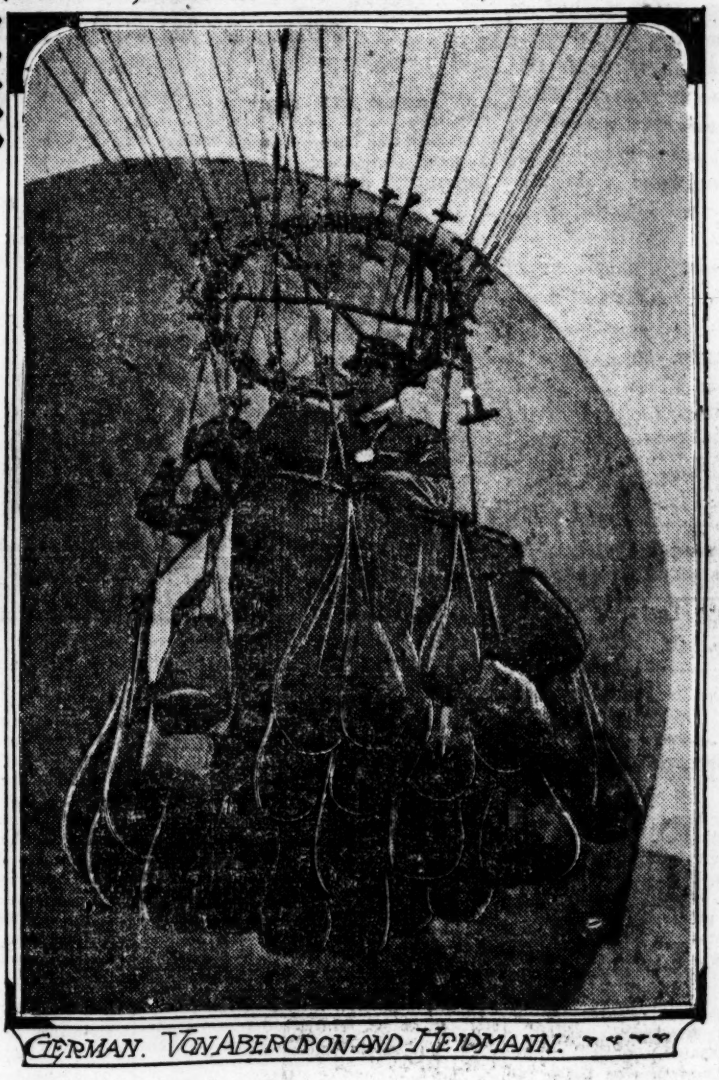

GERMAN PLAY CONTEST
BARS PROBLEMS AND POSTS
Berlin Jokes Also Excluded From Drama, Which Must Be Faithful Reflection.

BERLIN, Oct. 22.—The theater on the Spree is offering a prize of $200 for the best dramatic composition dealing with the life of the German peasant folk. The directors of the theater say that psychological plays or pieces dealing with involved family questions will be excluded from the competition, as they believe that farmers and peasants have no such problems to contend with. The play must be clean and the plot must develop easily and smoothly. The love story in it must be of the simple kind and the women in the play must not be "women with pasts."

The plays must not be epigrammatic and Berlin jokes must be excluded from it. In a word the piece must be a peasant piece from every point of view and must show the life of the peasants and farmers in any part of Germany.

MUSGRAVE FINED FOR HITTING WIFE

For disturbing the peace of his fifth wife, Thomas H. Musgrave, "the Arkansas planter," as he styles himself in his frequent advertisements for housekeepers, was fined $20 in the Dayton Street Police Court Tuesday.

He was charged with slapping Mrs. Josephine Musgrave, whom he is suing for a divorce and who has filed a cross-bill in the St. Louis Circuit Court. She testified against him and told how she picked up a stone to defend herself after she met him in company with another woman at Compton and Lucas avenues last Friday night.

The "other woman," Miss Marie Burnett of 715 North Compton Avenue, testified that Musgrave was escorting her to her home from his boarding place at 310 Lucas Avenue when the disturbance occurred. She said Musgrave slapped his wife's face.

Miss Burnett said she didn't know what it was all about. She had just gone to Musgrave's home to answer an advertisement for a housekeeper, she said, and she was pained and surprised to learn that he had a wife.

Musgrave testified that "so many ladies" answered his advertisements for a housekeeper that he came to St. Louis to look after his correspondence.

Mrs. Musgrave and Miss Burnett entered the courtroom together and an effort was made to show that they were in league against Musgrave, but Judge Sanders ruled out all questions on this point.

The fifth Mrs. Musgrave testified that she married Musgrave after she had met him through a "housekeeper" advertisement, but that she lived with him only a week.

PINK TEA HOST ON HOSPITAL STAFF

Chicago Institution Will Supply Good Cheer as an Aid for the Druggs.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Instead of adding more physicians to its staff, the Cook County Hospital has instituted a department of "social service," which is expected to do the patients more good than medicine.

There will be almost a score of "visiting attendants" whose only duty will be to report at the hospital daily and spend their time with those patients who are convalescent sufficiently to enable them to enjoy social amusements.

It is expected that there will be more women than men among the visiting attendants, as women are recognized by hospital authorities in all parts of the world as more efficient bringers of good cheer.

Less attention will be paid to drugs in the future, and more to amusements such as pink teas, at homes, bridge and similar forms of diversion, popular with the smart set. As a result it is hoped that the unfortunate will come forth better morally, mentally and physically and in shape to adorn a higher elevation in society than the one from which they were taken.

Such items as these, it is said, may be looked for in the society columns of the newspapers soon.

"Pat Rafferty, who suffered two fractures to his left leg and received a well known black eye in a fight at Hogan's saloon, will hold an at home in ward 12 of the County Hospital this afternoon," or—

"Maggie Dunaway and Kitty Cleary, who occupy adjoining beds at the County Hospital as a result of a fight in which they endeavored to murder each other, announce at at home to their friends tomorrow from 2 to 5 o'clock in ward 5," or—

"James Duggan has so far recovered from his attack of delirium tremens that it only takes two attendants at the County Hospital to show away the red and green elephants which formerly kept five men busy. The staff, greatly taken with Mr. Duggan's amiability and enthusiastic aversion to nature fakes, has decided to tender him a 'Teddy bear' party as soon as he is a little better."

IS SOUGHT IN BOODLE INQUIRY

Assistant Clerk of House Expected to Furnish Missing Link in Case.

DISAPPEARED FRIDAY

Reported at His Office to Have Gone on Fishing Trip.

ASPHALT CASE OPENED

Robert Coyne, Who Wanted to Be Barber Agent, Is to Testify.

Detectives Schenk and LaBarge were sent out Tuesday by Circuit Attorney Sager with instructions to find Daniel E. Naughton, Assistant Clerk of the House of Delegates, who is wanted as a grand jury witness in the investigation of the alleged bribery of Delegates Warner and Priesmeyer.

Naughton has not reported at the House of Delegates since the arrest of Warner and Priesmeyer Friday night, and it was stated in the Clerk's office that he has gone fishing.

Naughton followed the two delegates out of the House chamber after their arrest, and the Circuit Attorney believes that he can furnish the missing link in the chain necessary to establish connection between Delegates Priesmeyer, who is alleged to have been paid $200 by Henry Ascher, and Sam Weisman, an Olive Street tailor, who admits that he received the bills Saturday morning and deposited them to his credit in the City National Bank.

Is Not at His Home.

Bert Sutherland, a negro porter for Delegates in quest of Naughton. They then went to his home at 1809 O'Fallon street, but were not able to get any trace of the missing witness.

Bert Sutherland, a negro porter for Sam Weisman, was a witness before the grand jury Tuesday morning. He lives at 1200 Chouteau avenue. He is reported to be the man who took the two $100 bills to the City National Bank and deposited them to Weisman's credit. He hurried away after being excused by the grand jurors and refused to answer any questions.

Herman Gevers, Delegate from the Eighteenth Ward, was the next witness examined by the grand jury. Gevers said before going into the jury room that he was "up in the air" as to why his testimony was desired.

W. P. (Sport) Brady sat in the ante-room of the jury chamber a couple of hours Tuesday morning waiting to be called.

When the October grand jury resumed its session at 10 a. m. Tuesday it began an investigation of the holdup of asphalt paving bills by the House of Delegates in addition to the Warner and Priesmeyer bribery charges.

Robert Coyne, who is said to have sought employment as the agent of the Barber Asphalt Co., will be a witness during the day. Monday afternoon the grand jury wants to know why Brady visited Sam Weisman, the tailor, for whom the bills Ascher says he used were deposited in the Central National Bank the morning after the alleged bribery. Brady has admitted that he visited Weisman that morning, but denies that he saw or handled any hoolie funds.

The five $100 bills have been placed in escrow by Mr. Sager to be used as evidence in the trials of Warner and Priesmeyer.

Circuit Attorney Sager said that the grand jury intended to make its inquiry into the asphalt holdup searching.

EVIDENCE OF USE OF MONEY.

Herman Gevers, delegate from the Eighteenth Ward and a member of the Houses combine, will be a witness in the continuance of the investigation of the Ascher charge that he paid Delegates Priesmeyer and Warner $200 in $100 bills just before the bill authorizing him to maintain a garage was passed by the House.

Circuit Attorney Sager said that he did not believe he would call William P. (Sport) Brady, Sergeant-at-Arms of the House, at present, but might do so later. The grand jury wants to know why Brady visited Sam Weisman, the tailor, for whom the bills Ascher says he used were deposited in the Central National Bank the morning after the alleged bribery. Brady has admitted that he visited Weisman that morning, but denies that he saw or handled any hoolie funds.

The five $100 bills have been placed in escrow by Mr. Sager to be used as evidence in the trials of Warner and Priesmeyer.

ACCIDENT HANGS HORSE IN AIR

Wagon Turns Over, Lifting Belleville Animal by Collar.

One of a team of horses belonging to Robert Gooding was hung in midair when a heavy drag to which the team was hitched turned over on North Jackson street, Belleville. John Cady, the driver, attended too short a turn and the wagon rolled over.

This threw the wagon tongue in the air, an axle of about 4 inches lifting one of the horses so that his hind legs were a foot from the ground. It was held by its collar. The harness was cut and the horse lowered.

SLEIGHT OF HAND IN BRIBERY.

The gravity of the bribery charge against two members of the House of Delegates is emphasized by the manner in which the money used disappeared as by sleight of hand.

Five marked bills were passed to one of the delegates accused and immediately officers in waiting arrested him and his partner. When the prisoners were searched the money was not found on either of them. They had had no opportunity to confer, they were not out of view by their captors and no one else was near them except officers of the House and other delegates who crowded about them when they were taken into custody.

The marked bills were found a day later in a bank where they had been deposited by an outsider, and the question now is: How did he receive the money and to whom was it passed in the House of Delegates?

To be assured that legislative action is for sale; that money therefor is received when the House is in session and that there is hardly a pretense of secrecy is bad enough, but to learn that a representative taken with bribe money on his person can find in the House of Delegates as easily as a pickpocket might in a den of thieves confederates to whom he can deftly pass the evidence of his guilt is a new revelation of the possibilities of official corruption and degradation.

How many members of the House of Delegates knew that that bribe of $500 was to be received that night? How many of them was it to be divided among? And how small and contemptible is the price ticket which these wretches carry, anyway?

NO TEN-CENT BREAD.

There are intimations from interested persons that, if the price of grain continues to rise, as it is predicted that it will, if the foreign demand is sustained, we may look for 10-cent bread before spring.

If this is put out, like many other conjectural statements nowadays, merely as a feeler, we will inform the bread bakers that 10-cent loaves will make more trouble for them than profit and that that is an imposition which will not be tolerated.

Flour, of course, is comparatively high, but as we heard nothing of 2-cent loaves when flour was cheap, so now there will be no advance to 10 cents because wheat is a little higher than usual.

Ten-cent bread would be famine bread, and there is not enough sand in the craw of all the bread bakers in America to put that price into effect in one town, saying nothing about the entire country.

WJ AND WATERWAYS.

Though associated as zoologist with the sacred ibis, the sacred bull, the white elephant and the sanctified alligator, there is absolutely nothing sacred about Prof. WJ McGee, but on the contrary something decidedly human and selfish.

The selfishness crops out strong in his universal waterways scheme. He proposes to connect Hudson Bay with the Gulf of Mexico, and the Atlantic with the Pacific, by canals, and since the plan will not be practicable for a thousand years, his purpose is manifestly only a vain desire to go on record.

When succeeding generations have cut up the face of the hemisphere to make it look like Mars, he hopes that history will point back to 1907 and say, "WJ first proposed this."

Meanwhile WJ is a dangerous enemy to the immediate plan of digging a little and highly useful ditch from the Great Lakes to the Gulf.

Senator Bourne offers $1000 for good reasons why President Roosevelt should succeed himself. The man who can find them will earn the money. But if Mr. Roosevelt should actually succeed himself the real reason will be simple—because he wanted to.

Thomas A. Edison has solved another problem—this time how to build a three-story house at a cost of $1000 in 12 hours. If we ever hear of it again this must be something valuable.

Matters might be worse. Freight congestion among the railroads is a comforting condition to accompany financial stringency.

The most reckless balloonist in the United States is suffering from a broken leg. But he got it riding in an automobile.

The City Hall seems able to stand the loss of a great number of employees without impairing its working force.

WALKING THE PLANK.

It was a condition and got a theory which confronted the Heinzes, the Thomases and their associate, Morse, the other day.

They and the banks and companies in which they were interested needed assistance and it was offered by other banks only on condition that they should immediately retire from the banking and trust business, which they did. This process was euphemistically called their "elimination." It was, in effect, ostracism.

Such a judgment carries with it something more than a financial penalty. It fixes a moral and ethical stigma upon the men on whom it was passed. They have been excluded from a business in which, according to the judgment of their fellows, they have shown themselves to be unfit and unworthy.

Success, real or apparent, makes such men immune for a season, but they hold place always with the knowledge that when their desperate schemes fail they have nothing to fall back upon. Remorseless themselves, they know that no quarter will be shown them when they make a mistake.

With Harriman fighting for life in Illinois Central and with New York bankers improving the first opportunity to "eliminate" the Heinzes and their following, we may see one of the most wholesome results of the recent public awakening on the subject of honest and decent finance as contrasted with the frenzied variety.

The time has been when railway and other corporations, trust companies, insurance companies and banks could pass under the control of our later buccaneers and be exploited by them without a protest. In fact, despotic possession of these agencies, with all opposition silenced by the narrowing lust of gold, was what made their most daring enterprises possible.

Long menaced by these operations, the honest wealth of the country seems now to be fully awake to its own danger, and we may confidently look for further manifestations of its power. The financial and speculative bandit must appear in his proper person. He must not be permitted to assume the guise of conservatism or to exercise the powers of a trustee. The mildewed ears must go.

If the real masters of American finance have learned that there is no safety for them or anybody else in ignoring the stupendous offenses of the Harrimans and the Heinzes, they will exert an authority more to be dreaded than that of the lagard law. They excluded one piratical crowd from every position of responsibility and power in an hour. They can eliminate others in the same fashion if they will.

It does not yet appear whether the town of Roosevelt, not Stamboul, is black or white.

Something has been gained when Harriman can be fought even to a standstill.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Gouged at the Mine.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Nothing in your columns that deal in St. Louis costs the consumer from 10c to 15c, and St. Louis costs the consumer from 4c to 5c per bushel. I wish to inform the public that I live in a mining town having four mines, and coal costs us delivered 11 4-c per bushel, and not 4c or 5c, as the city folk presume. C. J. BENDER, Moline, Ill.

Meaning of the Wireless.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
The public men who sent messages on the occasion of the opening of the Marconi wireless system for commercial use expressed the hope that this event would mean the closer union of the two countries—Great Britain and the United States, between which the messages flashed. But we must not overlook the fact that the inventor of the system is an Italian, and that the people of Italy also should be included in our hope of happier relations between the nations. In fact, the wireless ought to mean the final union of all nations in one close pact, for peace and prosperity. Bishop Potter and Rev. Robert Holland have just asserted that universal peace is but a dream. Science, invention and general intelligence are spreading equally in all nations, and the result must be a cessation of those barbarities which are abhorrent to intelligent people.

COSMOPOLITAN.

Comfort for a Dog.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
No doubt many of those who read the papers have, like myself, been much touched and distressed by the accounts of the faithful little dog, waiting disconsolately at the Four Courts for its mistress, who has been removed to the City Hospital by another way than that by which she entered the Courts. It would seem that some one in authority, either at the Four Courts or Hospital, might interest himself, even to the extent of seeing that she was taken back over the same ground, if necessary, that the little creature might learn of her whereabouts, and thus be comforted in a measure, if the rules of the institution forbid his admission. He would probably follow readily any garment she had worn. Many of God's creatures are allowed to suffer needlessly because of the indifference of those who have the power to correct such things. Truly, "The more we see of men the better we like dogs."

HUMANITARIAN.

The Advertising Mania.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
No it's worse. Heretofore it was sufficiently difficult to "pick up" a name in the Bell telephone book, but the new one is "replete with advertising." Folks who pay for a directory have, I believe, no wasteful moments and if they want a directory they want a directory—not an advertising bulletin. First thing we know our bread will have a laundry ad on each loaf, on our eggs, as they come from the grocery, will be plastered a notice, "We lay for you," signed by some bricklayer. On our eggplant will appear the announcement, "Don't forget Quick, the Undertaker." Before we eat a piece of coffee cake we will be forced to remove a strip of paper announcing the fact that "All those who are dead drank coffee. Remember that." But, then, after all, d-n the consumer, anyhow. One of whom I am which.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

WOMEN AND "RACE SUICIDE."

Mrs. Stevens Assails the Roosevelt Dictum and a Post-Dispatch Writer Comes Up With Reinforcements for His Overthrow.

MRS. ADLAI STEVENSON, wife of a former Vice-President of the United States, has taken up President Roosevelt's challenge to womanhood. For the first time since the famous "anti-race suicide dictum" was issued from the White House several years ago a woman of national prominence has ventured to question his conclusions and hint at the disastrous results that would follow the general adoption of his beliefs.

Mrs. Stevenson bases a plea for fewer rather than more children on the ground that mothers and children alike benefit by limited families.

"Some thought," she urges, "should be given to prolonging the life of the mother, and thus securing to these babes a mother's care."

In my opinion, she is entirely right in her challenge of Mr. Roosevelt's views, and she is to be congratulated on her courage in staking openly what all women who think and feel know in their hearts is absolutely true.

Yesterday I asked a woman 75 years old, who had been identified all her life with every movement for the advancement of her sex in America, if she did not approve of Mrs. Stevenson's remarks, and she, although herself a mother, replied:

"Oh, I couldn't think of discussing a subject so indelicate."

It is such false and silly prudery as this which has left Mr. Roosevelt so long unanswered by American women, and it was in the face of this spirit that Mrs. Stevenson made her plea.

I have never been able to see how Mr. Roosevelt had any more right or title to issue a fiat against race suicide than he would have to say what color our parlor curtains shall be or whether we shall have burlap or cartridge paper in the dining room. They are all, though of varying importance, essentially woman questions for women to solve; and it is not what Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Jones or Mr. Brown thinks about race suicide that counts. Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Brown are the persons mainly concerned thereon, and therefore, most interesting to hear from.

The poor woman of today who bears 10 children to live starved and stunted morally and physically in mines and factories that grow rich by child labor, has not benefited anyone but the seekers after cheap labor. She takes the half loaf on which two or three might subsist scantily and divides and subdivides it till it can scarcely keep life flickering in the frail bodies of a too numerous offspring.

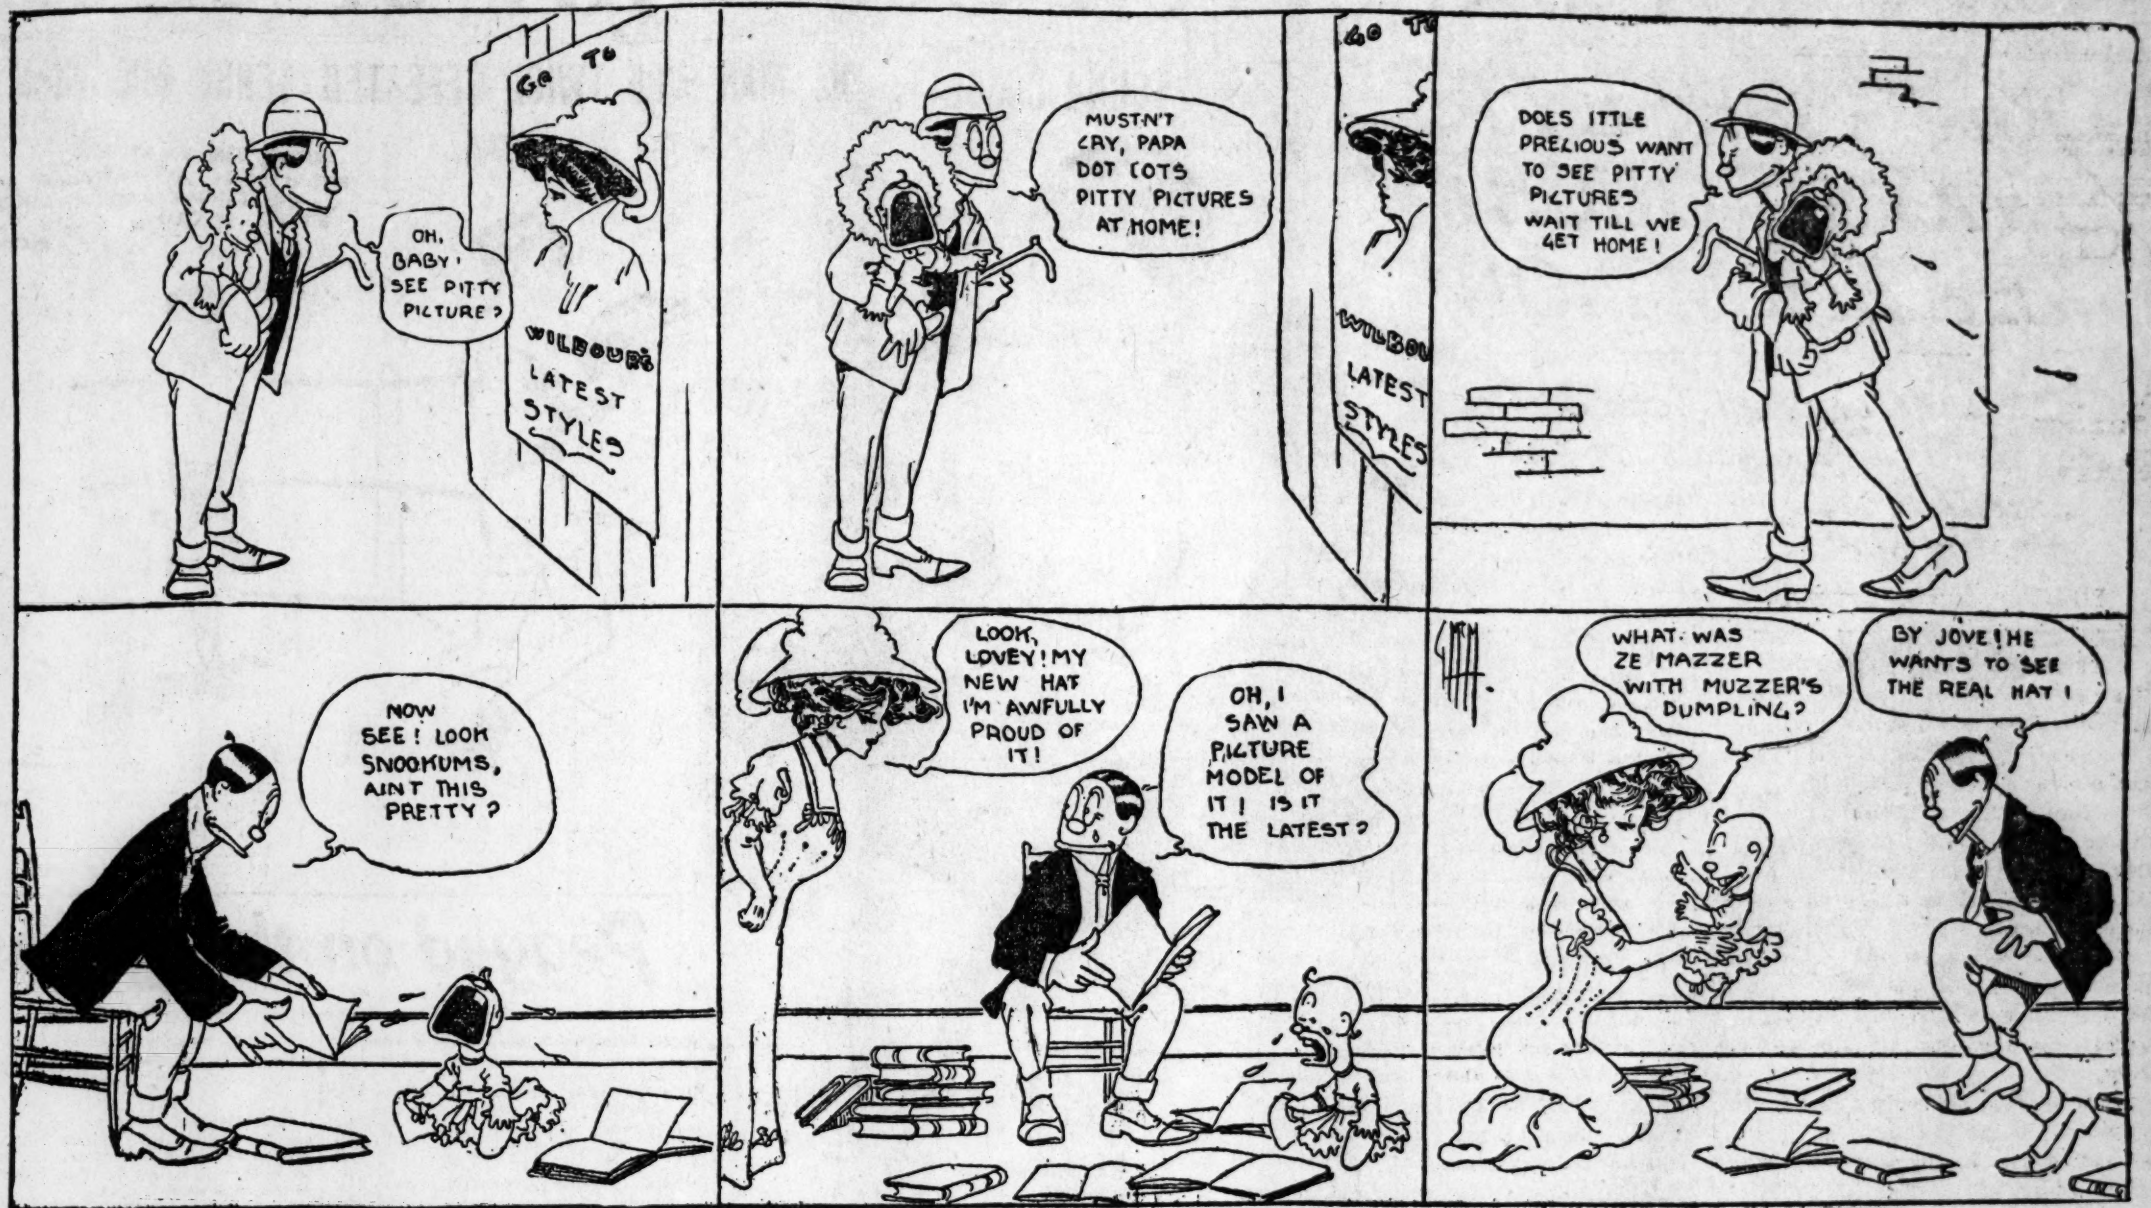

It is not possible for the poor mother of a large family to mean so much to her children whom she must see grow up, because of their numbers, without the advantages of education and environment that might have been contrived for one or two.

This is considering the question entirely from the standpoint of the rights of the child to be well born and well cared for, and leaves untouched the right of the mother to her own life unhampered by premature age or lingering disease. One need only contrast the extremes of fecundity and of childlessness, the faded, worn-out woman who has had 10 children before she is 30, and the radiant society woman who has had none at all and retains the complexion and figure she had at 20, when she is 35, to realize what the Roosevelt dictum would exact of its victims.

In my opinion it is questionable which of the two does society more harm—the one who has more children than the family can support and educate to be good citizens or the one who shrinks these responsibilities altogether.

CORSET DANGERS.

From the Medical Record.
William Edward Fitch of New York claims that the use of the corset as it is made by the corset manufacturer limits abdominal respiration, compresses the abdominal and pelvic organs and is a cause of displacements of the kidneys, intestines and pelvic organs. The corset is an impediment to the normal development of the young girl. The author contends that under the supervision of physicians corsets have been constructed that are not open to any of these objections and that are perfectly healthful.

TRYING HIS CHEEKS.

From the Philadelphia Record.
Lincoln Beachy, the well-known aeronaut, was criticizing in New York the airship of a rival.

"I don't want to be too severe on this dangerous contrivance of yours," Mr. Beachy said. "It's a bad affair all through, but I am willing to let it off easy, as the customer did with the careless barber."

"There was a barber in South Bend who, having been out late the night before, had a shaky hand the next morning and cut a patron's cheek four times. After each accident the barber said, as he sponged away the blood, 'Oh, dear me, how careless!' and laughed, and let it go at that."

"The patron took all those gashes in grave silence. But when the shave was over he filled a glass of water, and with compressed lips proceeded to shake his head from side to side and to toss it up and down."

"What is the matter?" the barber asked. "You ain't got the toothache, have you?"

"No," said the customer. "I'm only just wanted to see if my mouth would still hold water without leaking, that was all."

MELVIN FOREST CRIGLER.

Confusing English.

"I see one of our battleships reported fast in the mud."

"I was just thinking that a ship fast in the mud ought to be a record breaker on the open sea."

WHY ARE MEN LESS COURTEOUS

Than in the Day of Our Grandmothers? A Discussion by Post-Dispatch Readers. Prize Awards Next Sunday.

The men of today are just as chivalrous and courteous as in days of yore—only the women have changed. In the South and Canada woman's happiness and comfort reigns supreme in man's thoughts. As you move toward the Northern and Eastern states "the independent spirit" has pervaded woman's sanctuary and she would be classed as masculine. Right here in St. Louis a conductor attempted to assist an elderly lady to alight from the car, when she haughtily replied, "I don't need your assistance, sir." That is why the gallantry is crushed. "The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world." Just so, woman commands or repels courtesy.

MRS. JERRE LAMBERT.
3332 North Twenty-fifth st.

Because of such high living and such a fast age, women don't respect themselves highly enough. You take any young man, for instance, and as long as it shortens the life, destroys the beautiful fresh appearance, and causes them to go to pieces. The one and only way to be sure of quality in starch is to get the genuine.

Because gallantry is not appreciated nowadays as formerly.

A. KAPPEN, 311 Park avenue.

"When knighthood was in flower," a milady sat in a rose-scented boudoir, with a dusky maid to brush her shining tresses and fasten the costly lace at her swan-like throat with a priceless brooch.

Or she sat at the spinning wheel, humming some love ditty as she dreamed love's young dream. But this did not last. The clarion notes of the bugle, "To war!" sounded. All was changed. Milady of the boudoir must earn her daily bread; milady of the spinning wheel must leave the sheltering down of the bright family fireside and face the world. They fought bravely, side by side. They won many laurels, but they lost their crown as "Goddesses of courtesy." They taught man they could surpass him in endurance and equal him in ability. But the struggle—the familiarity—it bred not man's contempt, it bred his discourtesy. In the language of a man, "Man became unmanly when woman became unwomanly."

A. HART.

The men of nowadays are so busy and in so much of a hurry to get the baseball extra, to catch their car and get home that they have no time to stop to apologize when they brush past poor grandma, knock the bundles out of her arms and pretty near knock her over. The poor old lady stoops to pick them up, expecting every minute to see the gentlemen come forward, bow and drop to the ground and laden with apologies. She turns to find him—gone! She walks on, while at the same time she mutters to herself, "When I was young men were never like this." But these men are all unconscious of their seeming negligence. So we have to forgive and excuse them. HAZEL HONHORST, 140 Saunders street, Mt. Auburn, Cincinnati, O.

First, woman has essayed to take man's place in business. Second, having placated him, naturally she has put herself on a level with him, while before she was held more sacred. Third, woman having become emancipated, she has lost that finer womanhood that our mothers and grandmothers possessed. Seventh, having lost her identity with the every-day man, he naturally treats her as so much avordupois, skirts, flouncings, frills and ribbons.

J. A. MARTIN, 312 N. Seventh st.

Because the woman is placing herself more on an equality with men in business relations. In so doing she loses some of the modest reserve which characterized our grandmothers. In those days men met women on a social plane, while now he comes in contact with her in his every-day business life. I believe this to be the principal reason.

MRS. A. C. EPPLEY, 1500 Belle street, Alton, Ill.

THE ATLANTIC EDITORS.

The Atlantic Monthly has had, all told, seven editors-in-chief. James Russell Lowell brought out the first number in November, 1857. Mr. Fields assumed "the seat of the plumed" for the 10 years beginning 1867. "The preliminary bows and courtesies," as a journal of the day phrased it, were now over, and the venture was an established institution. On Mr. Fields' retirement in '71, William Dean Howells, who had been his assistant since 1866, succeeded him. Mr. Aldrich, who died last spring, followed in '81 for another 10 years' reign in the Atlantic office. On his leaving in 1890, the magazine passed into the hands of Horace E. Scudder, who conducted it until 1897, being followed for a period of two years by Walter H. Page. In 1899, Bliss Perry, the present editor, took charge of the famous periodical.

GENERAL SPORTING NEWS

HARD CONTESTS
CLOSE AT HAND
FOR ST. LOUIS

Creighton University of Omaha First Invading Team of Calibre.

WASHINGTON IMPROVES

Blanchard Working Hard With Myrtle and Maroon, Preparing for Missouri

BEGINNING with the Creighton University game next Saturday, St. Louis will commence its real work of the year. Up to this time the teams it has met have been mediocre in ability, minor in importance and very much of the practice variety.

Following Creighton comes Washington, Wash. Kansas and Nebraska in order, and each may be a stiff and hard contest for the Blue and White team. Coaches though are not at all perturbed by the outlook and, in fact, rather await the big games of his schedule with much anticipation.

Little is known of the Creighton team, which will be making its local debut here this season, but the reports from Omaha have it that the eleven representing the Jesuit school this year is the fastest and best drilled team that has ever sported its colors. When booked the Grand avenue school did not count upon meeting such a formidable team in October, but since Creighton has got wind of the caliber of his opponent he has hurried his charges a bit in their work and as a consequence the team will be farther advanced by the end of the month than the ex-Wisconsin man counted upon having.

Nebraska Usually Green.

The Omaha University being situated out in the far West, naturally draws its students from the plains and farm and as a result always is in possession of a husky bunch of material. The usual drawback is that they are as verdant as the grass in May and their inexperience has cost them dearly.

Bill Coach Bell, an old pupil of York's at Michigan, and who had such a successful season coaching Tarkio College last year, had an unusually large number of veterans to work with and accordingly has been able to finish off the Omaha gridiron in a number of seasons. It will average close to 180 pounds, and for its weight is very active and aggressive, especially the two tackles.

Behind the line Broome, the captain, will play and direct the team from quarterback and Harmon and Hroek will play the halfbacks with Magli and switched in at fullback. The men on the wings have not as yet been definitely picked, but Stevens and Sucha are picked for the end positions. Speed is the great attribute Bell has been trying to grab into his back field and the men are just about beginning to pick up their feet.

While St. Louis U. appreciates the fact that Creighton will give them a stiff argument, there is no fear whatever of going down to defeat. The Blue and White team is only a question of score with the locals. The teams followers are willing to wager on 20 points, but the wily Cochems says that is absurd and that he will feel gratified merely to win. But Cochems is long on the bear talk and to listen to the St. Louis U. director tell it you would imagine his champions were just a very lucky aggregation and that a defeat was apt to spring up any minute. "I don't know," he would like to get a whirl at Michigan, Yale or any of the big teams of the country.

Washington and Cape Normal.

When St. Louis is battling with Creighton the Saturday before it meets Washington for the local supremacy the Pikeview school will be handling Cape Girardeau Normal, which the Blue and White team smothered early in the month to the tune of 59-0.

Washington's showing against the Teachers will give a nice line on the probable score of the St. Louis U. game a week distant. There are some frayed, wildly enthusiastic followers of the Myrtle and Maroon team who really expect their pride to defeat Cochems' eleven, but this is too violent a stretch of the imagination for most of the local gridiron enthusiasts, and the most they are asking of Blanchard's men is to hold St. Louis to a low score.

Blanchard has had a world of troubles to contend with in the Stadium this fall, but by the Normal game should have his team moving in fair shape, and if he can hold up a score of over 25 points will be doing splendidly.

With Thomas back in the game and Cobb a very promising "vet" of two years ago out again for the fullback position, the Myrtle and Maroon back field is taking on gradually the hue of a collegiate trio. The line has the makings of a first-class quintet in it, and needs only stiff hard work, mostly scrimmage, to develop it into a first-class rush line. Vickers on an end will solve the question connected with one wing, and if Hagler, a strapping boy of 175 pounds, makes good at the other end Blanchard will be well fortified on defense at the end of the line.

Strikes and Spares
On St. Louis Alleys

With but one or two exceptions, the scores made in the cocked hat and ten-pin league matches Monday night were ordinary.

In the clash between the Affinities and Deuces of the Palace Tenpin League on the Palace alleys, DeVries, anchor for the Affinities, averaged 212-2-3 for the three games, which is good work. DeVries downed 27 pins in the third game. After losing the first, the Affinities took the next two games and the match.

In the Hardware Tenpin League matches on the DeSoto alleys, the Mow-ers, by taking three games from the Klattos in easy fashion, moved into first place, with a record of 14 games won and but 4 lost. The Corkers, who were in the lead, suffered defeat at the hands of the Trimmers, 2 to 1. Hass-baum of the Pendere registered the best average of the evening, with 185-1-3, which did not save his team from a defeat administered by the Clippers in a 2-1 break.

Edward Elkington of the Ermatings team of the St. Louis Ten Pin League was warmly congratulated by the bowlers on the downtown alleys Monday night for his great work in practice that afternoon, when he bowled a perfect game on the Grand alleys and followed it up with a 221 game and another of 202, giving him a total of 723 for the three.

Imperial Crown Increase Lead.
The Imperial Crowners further increased their lead in the Meyer Bros. League by winning the odd game from the La Crestonias, although it was a most exciting match. The teams met on the Royal alleys. The Imperial Crowners annexed the first and fourth games. In the fifth game each secured 221 pins. On the roll off the Imperial Crowners gained the advantage and won the match, giving the team a record of 19 games won and 11 lost. The La Crestonias have won 15 games and lost the same number.

St. Louis tenpin men are greatly pleased with the news that New York may enter the field in an effort to secure the 1908 American Bowling Congress. For two years the A. B. C. tournaments have drawn nothing but teams from the Central West. The Eastern teams bowled in what is known as the Metropolitan Association, an offshoot from the A. B. C. Last spring the American Bowling Congress was held in this city. The tournament was a success, although no Eastern teams entered.

Pittsburg Also a Candidate.
The Pittsburg delegation while in St. Louis last spring was doing everything in their power by boosting, distributing badges, literature and other means to induce the members of the A. B. C. to award the 1908 tournament to that city. Cincinnati will hold the next tournament in 1908. St. Paul will no doubt make a strong bid for the championships this year again. Chicago, Milwaukee and Louisville have already received the money of the A. B. C.

The West can afford to lose the tournament for one year and let it go to New York, if by so doing the bowling interests of both sections can again be brought together. Pittsburg wants the tournament and is determined to have it. A silver-tongued orator from New York to address the delegates at the next meeting of the A. B. C. in Cincinnati would make it possible for Gotham to put up a great fight for the tournament.

BOWLING INCREASE HAS BEEN RAPID

Statistics Show That It Is Now Second Only to Baseball Game in This Country.

ORGANIZATION PERFECTED

Cincinnati Tournament Expected to Surpass All Other Efforts—Sam Karpf Talks.

Bowling, we all know, is as "old as the hills," but the contrast between bowling of today and bowling of "ye olden times" is so great that a comparison is impossible, says Sam Karpf, secretary of the A. B. C. in the Brooklyn Times.

Like other leading sports and pastimes, bowling and bowlers are today governed by national bodies. This in itself has gone a long way to place the game on the high plane which it occupies today. In the East the bowlers have the National Bowling Association to lead them on. The pin knights of the West and Middle West are guided in their destinies by the American Bowling Congress, the parent organization. The bowlers west of the Mississippi have as their Moses the Western Bowling Congress. Our tenpin friends across the border, who are subjects of the King, have placed their faith in the Canadian Bowlers' Association, while the sphere wielders of our sister republic, Mexico, also have a national body.

These, however, are not all. The bowlers of New England, who find as much pleasure in the rolling of small balls at the duck and candle pins as the ordinary bowler of today when rolling his favorite strike and spare game with the 16-pound ball, whether it is made wholly of wood or loaded or turned from some foreign substance, also have a governing body, and they can refer in case of disputes and differences. It is known as the National Duck and Candle Pin Congress. Therefore, it will be readily seen that when it comes to governing bodies the bowlers are not very far behind their baseball friends.

Bowling Commission.
There is also in existence at the present time a bowling commission, but so far it has not accomplished anything startling. Its reason for existing is to avoid any conflict in dates for the several "national" tournaments to be held during the months of February and March, 1908. One really fortunate thing for the bowlers and the game in general, is that the playing rules of the five governing tenpin bodies are almost identical, the same, especially in the measurements as laid down for alleys, pins and balls, and also in the playing rules.

The time has not yet come, and probably will not for some time, when any of the governing bodies will try to exert themselves to such an extent as to handle the game from beginning to end in every section of the country. This can hardly be accomplished, because of the peculiar conditions which exist in the various large cities throughout the country where the game has secured a firm foothold.

Every city association, league or tournament governs its own affairs according to conditions it is forced to confront, but all of them play under the rules and regulations as laid down by the parent body. They become a part and parcel of the major body, by joining the city association or some similar subsidiary, and right here is where the powers of the "majors" stop.

A. B. C. Is Best.
The American Bowling Congress, however, goes a step further than the other bodies. It demands that all alleys on which its members roll be certified as being correct in construction, and also insists that all leagues and tournaments in which its members compete be sanctioned, in order to assure the payment of prizes and a fair and honest competition. Where these two things are not done, the American Bowling Congress is not responsible to its members for any defaults or other shortcomings.

All these little details have gone a long way toward making the game powerfully strong in the West, and incidentally have made the wielder of the wooden sphere that he has some standing in sports and pastimes.

The bowling game has long ago ceased to be merely a barroom sport. Today alleys are in spacious halls, well lighted, well ventilated and kept spotlessly clean. It is now a game that all classes can play, not only without demoralizing effect, but with advantages. Rich and poor, professional and mechanic, banker and merchant, old and young, men and women can take a hand in it and derive benefit therefrom. At present the number of spectators that gather on ordinary occasions is somewhat limited, because primarily it is a game of action that invites everybody to play rather than to watch. In the not distant future, it may be that observation galleries on an extensive scale will be called for. With every growing interest it is perhaps certain that such will be the case, but just now it is gratifying to say that professionalism is absent, and that bowling tenpins is more of a playing than a spectacular game.

Great Indoor Game.
Until recently many estimable people thought bowling a pastime so undeserving of encouragement that it should be tabooed; today it commands recognition as an excellent indoor game—a game that of all competitive indoor contests is perhaps the best for the health and exercise, and yet this is the game that until the last few years has held a minor place in public appreciation.

There is nothing in bowling pins that can be considered objectionable. It is athletic exercise, pure and simple; it trains the eye, hardens the muscles of body and limb, and strengthens the nerve. If its surroundings are clean and wholesome there is not a feature that is undesirable.

BROTHER-IN-LAW OF KING
EDWARD IS POETIC GENIUS

Duke of Argyll Also Has Written Play and Designed Wall Paper.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Noting that the Duke of Argyll's memoirs will be one of the big books of the autumn publishing season, the London Magazine, M. A. P., is reminded that it has been said of the husband of King Edward's sister, Louise, that "if he had not been a Duke he would have been quite a decent poet." An indiscreet reviewer, commenting on a book of verse published by the Duke under a pseudonym, wrote that it was "nice to be able to temper the wind to the sham Lorne." "But, joking apart," M. A. P. continues.

ues. "The Duke really is a poet of quality and has published several volumes of excellent verse. There are, indeed, few things the Duke cannot do. It is said that he has even designed patterns for wall papers. A few years ago he wrote an opera, "Diamid," which Han-nah McCann set to music and it was produced at Covent Garden.

TENNESSEE COTTON GROWERS READY FOR CROP MOVEMENT

Warehouse Completed and Their Own Bank Will Loan on Staple.

LEXINGTON, Tenn., Oct. 21.—The Board of Directors of the Henderson County Farmers' Union Warehouse Co. have declared Lexington Union Warehouse (the old Watson Cotton Co. gin building) near the N. C. & St. L. depot, open for business. P. O. Roberts was elected warehouse keeper and cotton grader for it and the Union Warehouse, being constructed at Timberlake.

Mr. Roberts is a pupil of the Farmers' Union Cotton Grading School at Memphis.

E. J. Timberlake, president of the Farmers' Union Bank to be opened here, promised to advance on cotton two-thirds of the minimum price fixed by the union on a middling basis. This minimum price now stands at 15 cents per pound, and it will be interesting to note to what extent the union's decree will be observed in Henderson County.

Kansas Definition for "Blockhead."
EMPORIA, Kan., Oct. 21.—Dr. Wilbur of the State University, lecturing before the Normal students here, stated that right-handed people used the left side of their brain and the reverse. "Blockheads," he said, "are right-handed people who rummage around in the right side of the head for ideas."

YOUNG MAN MARRIES GRANDMOTHER AND REGAINS THE FAMILY FORTUNE

Mrs. T. H. Williston

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 21.—Marrying his grandmother, T. H. Williston, a horseman of Manlius, N. Y., has regained the fortune from which he was cut off by his grandmother. With his grandmother-ride Williston visited San Francisco on their honeymoon to the Orient.

The bridegroom, now 25, gained the displeasure of his grandfather, Dr. Buttmann of Rochester, N. Y., "a peppy old fellow," Dr. Buttmann, who had already excluded his granddaughter from his will and allowance, for marrying a cigar clerk, cut off Williston, who was the sole, surviving heir.

To prevent "that young horse racer" from getting any of his money he sought about the bride. To make the revenge upon his grandson doubly sweet, the old fellow chose the young man's sweetheart, who was then 17. The sweetheart and the grandson held a hasty conference. "Sure, the marriage is the thing," both agreed.

It was expected that the bridegroom-grandfather, who was then 80, would not last long. He did, however, live five years and then there he was to be a year of widow's weeds. The marriage followed then, the fortune was restored to the grandson who, at his wife's request, gave half to his sister. And now the young bridegroom and his grandmother-ride are planning to live happy ever after.

MOTH IN THROAT KILLS A CHILD

Doctor Was Near When Accident Happened, but Could Not Save Life.

OWENSBORO, Ky., Oct. 21.—Death, almost instant, from swallowing a candle moth is the fate that befell 10-year-old Jesse Moore, son of George Moore of the Whitesville section. The moth passed into the boy's windpipe, and although a physician was in the house at the time, the effects were so rapid and fatal that he could do nothing to save the child's life.

A large moth was fluttering around the lamp, which sat on a table near the boy. Suddenly the moth flew into Jesse's open mouth. The father saw it and supposed that Jesse would be awakened, but he became black in the face and was apparently thrown into convulsions.

In an adjoining room a younger child of the Moores was ill. Dr. McDonald of Whitesville had called to attend it, and Mr. Moore was at the bedside at the time. Mr. Moore hurriedly called Dr. McDonald. The doctor was at Jesse's side within a few seconds, but found him so far gone that nothing could be done.

The moth had lodged squarely in the top of the windpipe, completely shutting off his breath. Even this, under the circumstances, should not have produced death so quickly, and it is supposed that some peculiar irritation of the nervous system was produced which hastened the process.

WINDOW SIGN IS CUPID'S AID TO FATHER OF SIX

Widower's Advertisement Brings Applicants for Job of Wife, but Family Seems Too Large for Might-Be-Bride.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Disgusted with the "senseless formalities" which hedge about the selection of a wife, N. H. Matthews, a widower, 50 years old, settled the courtship question in a manner which, he believes, would save him much trouble. Matthews placed a placard bearing the following inscription in the front window of his home, 1306 North Halsted street, along with the ice and milk cards:

A widower living within WANTS A WIFE.
Ladies, if you want a husband,
Inquire within at once.
N. H. MATTHEWS.

The appearance of the card created something of a sensation along the street, especially among the women of marriageable age. Carous reciting the wants of inmates of flats in the vicinity told of everything that might be lacking from bread-to-hired girls, but that a swain should seek his affinity in such a seemingly reckless manner seemed novel.

Woman Sees Sign.
But it was not long before Mrs. Matthews learned that it paid to advertise. Among the passersby was a neat, attired woman, who glanced at the sign, hesitated, started back, hesitated again, and at last ventured up and rang the doorbell. Matthews appeared. "I beg pardon, but I noticed your advertisement," began the applicant by way of introduction.

"O, yes," answered Matthews. "Just step into the parlor."
"Will you please tell me something about the place that is—I mean you?" asked the woman.
"Why yes," replied Matthews. "My wife died six months ago and I have found that the housekeepers you get about the city care nothing about a man's children. I must have somebody who will be a mother to my children, and I believe that the way to get that person is to marry her."

"I want a good, motherly woman about 35 years old—about your age. I want a woman that could love me, and I am sure that I could learn to love her."

"How many children are there?" was the next question.

"Has Six Children."

"I have six. There are but four little ones at home, however," said Matthews. Up to that moment the applicant had appeared to lean toward accepting the position, strange as it was. But then her face fell.

"Why, I hadn't thought of any children," she said. "I don't know. Could I see them?"

A moment later two of the four children were in the room. "They certainly are sweet little things. But I don't know. I'll tell you, I'll write if I think better of the matter. Good-by," and the first applicant was gone.

There were many other applicants who seemed to favor Matthews alone, but the prospect of mothering four little children seemed to strike terror to their hearts.

Matthews has found, he says, that there are many young women living in

MAID TRIPS OUT; HOUSE ALARMED

Mrs. John B. Henderson Thought Burglars Were After the Silverware.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Mrs. John B. Henderson, wife of former Senator Henderson of Missouri, and a leader in social circles here, created a flurry among the police last night. In a voice trembling with excitement she telephoned headquarters that burglars were in the family residence, known as Henderson castle, adding: "If you act quickly the burglars can be captured, as I am positive they are still in the house."

Fifteen minutes later a patrol wagon dashed up to Henderson castle and a squad of men in blue rushed into the house.

Silverware in the House.
Mrs. Henderson explained that a large consignment of valuable silverware had just been brought from a safe deposit vault and the burglars evidently were after it.

The police searched the house from cellar to garret and then reported to Mrs. Henderson that the burglars must have tunneled out under the foundation or climbed out through a chimney. Mrs. Henderson insisted that they must still be in the house, as no one had left since she gave the alarm.

As the officers stood solemnly pondering on the peculiar situation a faint single was heard. Another search revealed a parlor maid hiding behind a curtain.

Maid Sneaked Out.
When dragged forth she said that her mirth was caused by the fact that Lizzie, another maid, had sneaked out of the house, ignoring Mrs. Henderson's command to halt.

It appeared that Lizzie, in "hooking" her way out, had cast a shadow on the wall which Mrs. Henderson mistook for that of a man. She called upon the supposed intruder to stop, but Lizzie continued to take her surreptitious flight. Not hearing the door close, Mrs. Henderson provided a soft pedal telephone and invite police assistance.

When the giggling maid had told her tale, Mrs. Henderson said that the probability the bringing home of the silverware had made her unduly nervous.

THREE REASONS WHY SO MANY QUICK STEEL HEATERS ARE SOLD.

Reason Number One

Reason Number Two

Reason Number Three

They have an opening at the top. With other heaters, every time you open the top to put in coal, foot, smoke and dirt enters your room. You feed Quick Steel Heaters directly below the top—the smoke goes up the chimney, where it belongs.

Quick Steel Heaters have a practically indestructible sectional air blast. They consume most of the coal gas and soot, and burn the poorest grade of soft coal with perfect satisfaction.

Unlike other heaters, Quick Steel Heaters have a steel top and steel bottom, which can be fitted absolutely air-tight to the steel body and will not warp or crack from fire.

BRYAN BUZZES NAMES PRESS ATTACK

Flatly Refuses to Tell What Newspapers Are "For Sale."

"EVIDENT" HE SAYS World Says He Can't Hide Behind Secrecy in Grave Charges.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—William Jennings Bryan incorporated in his address at Cooper Union last night what he had announced would be an elucidation of the charge made by him that "the large metropolitan dailies are controlled by the trusts and their columns are open to the highest bidder," which charge, according to the Associated Press, he made in Richmond, Va., a week ago last Friday.

The World telegraphed to Mr. Bryan that his columns were open to him to elaborate and make good his charge. Names of papers and specifications were requested. Mr. Bryan replied to the World's message that he would discuss the matter at more length in his New York speech.

Mr. Bryan did not name the paper last night that he had in mind when he made his charge. His answer was general in character. At the conclusion of his speech a World reporter asked him: "Will you name a single New York newspaper whose columns are for sale?"

"No, I will not," replied Mr. Bryan. "Will you furnish the World the evidence you assert you possess to prove your charge?"

"No, I will not," replied Mr. Bryan. "Because," is his reason.

"Because I won't. But I will tell you what I will do," continued Mr. Bryan. "I will tell the World confidentially some of the things it has done."

The World wants no confidential statements, Mr. Bryan. It will print anything you may have to say about it, or any other New York newspaper, if it is true. I cannot find out who some of them are. It is one of the casualties of our day that so many—not all—of our great metropolitan papers are owned by people whose names are not known.

Refuses Request for Proof.
"One of your papers has asked me for proof. Well, my friends, I shall not attempt to offer proof for two reasons: In the first place, no one is required to attempt to establish a self-evident truth, and this is a self-evident truth; the second reason is that I have a larger work, I think, than to enter into personal controversy with anyone, even a newspaper."

"But I have received information, if not sufficient to establish a case in court, it is sufficient to convince me that many of these papers are owned by men who own them for no other purpose than to deceive the public, while the public is being exploited by the owners of these papers; and I have received information in this and other cities which leads me to believe that the columns of many of the metropolitan papers are for sale to the highest bidder."

"But I think I possibly ought to qualify the statement for the highest bidder would imply that there were at least two bidders, whereas on most of these questions there is but one bidder—predatory wealth on one side and the unprotected masses on the other, and the papers are always on the side of predatory wealth; not all, but some—many I will say."

World Demands Names.
Commenting on this, the New York World says, editorially:

"Mr. Bryan has either said too much or too little. His charges are either true or they are false. In either case this is a matter of such tremendous public importance that we are justified in calling upon him for names and instances."

"What great metropolitan newspapers are used as a adjunct to, to depict other enterprises? What great metropolitan newspapers are for sale to the highest bidder? Names, Mr. Bryan, names!"

"No more serious offense can be committed in a republic than the deliberate corruption and debauchery of public opinion by the press. For public opinion is the very foundation of a republican government. There is no other kind of information to which the public has a better right than the names of the corrupt newspapers and expose them by name."

The Hearst Method.
"It is well enough for Mr. Hearst to denounce the courts as corrupt, to denounce Congress as corrupt, to denounce Cabinet officers as corrupt, to denounce the press as corrupt, to denounce all his opponents as corrupt. Nothing better can be expected from a desperate and irresponsible demagogue; but Mr. Bryan, we hope, is not in Mr. Hearst's class. He has character, respectability, conscience; he is a gentleman whom other gentlemen are proud to associate with regard to less of political differences."

We consider that Mr. Bryan's charges against the metropolitan press are perhaps the most serious he has made in his public career. We trust, therefore, that as the responsible leader of a great political party, it is his business to make them specific and definite."

Delegates' Punishment Asked.
The Twenty-seventh Ward Improvement Association has adopted a resolution demanding that House of Delegates members be punished if malign influence has been used in preventing the passage of the free bridge bill. Circuit Attorney Edgar is thanked for the arrest of two delegates. The association meeting was held Monday evening at Union boulevard and Easton avenue.

HERD OF BUFFALO IN ITS NEW HOME

Gift Animals Taken From New York Park to Oklahoma.

PRESERVE IS IDEAL

Friends of Bison Hope for Rapid Increase There.

CACHE, O. T., Oct. 22.—The buffalo herd which was presented to the National Government by the New York Zoological Society last year, to form the nucleus of a bison preserve in the new range of 750 acres specially prepared for it in the best portion of the Wichita forest and game reserve, 12 miles from here.

Fifteen fine animals, the pick of the splendid herd of 45 head in the New York Zoological Park, were crated, each in a roomy and comfortable crate, and shipped to this place, where they have been given freedom as nearly as possible like their ideal days. In view of the nature and object of the shipment, a gift to the people for the sole purpose of helping to preserve the American bison from ultimate extinction, the American Express Co. and the New York Central lines transported the two cars free of charge from New York to St. Louis, and the Wells Fargo Express Co. made a similar arrangement over the Frisco Railroad from St. Louis to Cache.

Plan Originated in New York.
The idea of a Southwest National bison preserve was originated by the New York Zoological Society, originated with Dr. William T. Hornaday, director of the Zoological Park, and from its earliest mention it was warmly endorsed by the Executive Committee of the society. The offer was made to the Secretary of Agriculture, who immediately accepted it, and invited the society to select a site for the new fenced range that was necessary.

The society dispatched a special agent, J. A. Loring, who went to the Wichita Reserve, and with Supervisor E. P. Morrissey, carefully examined the whole available territory. A location was agreed upon, and Loring submitted to the society an elaborate and thorough report, which was forwarded to the Department of Agriculture, and to Congress.

Secretary Wilson secured a special appropriation of $15,000 for the erection of a wire fence to inclose 12 square miles of prairie, and to erect corrals, sheds and a hay barn. This work will soon be completed under the direction of the Forestry Bureau of the Department of Agriculture, whose officers are keenly interested in the undertaking. All the improvements will be made by the New York Zoological Society, and the animals for the nucleus herd were carefully selected by him.

The buffalo herd of the New York Zoological Park has for a long time been one of the chief sights of the city, and the animals were carefully selected by him. The herd is now in the new fenced range that was necessary.

Notwithstanding the fine condition of this herd, the officers of the Zoological Society know that the only sure way in which the American bison can be preserved in full vigor is by establishing herds under conditions of freedom, on public lands, in ranges so large and so diversified that the animals will be wild and free. Under such conditions, Dr. Hornaday declares that no ill effects from inbreeding ever need be feared.

The herd in the reservation here is composed as follows: Six breeding cows, one bull, "Comanche," 5 years old and master of the herd; one bull 3 1/2 years old, two bulls and one cow in second year and one pair of calves, male and female, 6 months old. In this collection of ten different strains of blood are represented and there will be nothing to fear from inbreeding. The shipment was in charge of Frank Rusk, keeper of the New York Zoological Park, and H. Raymond Mitchell, chief of the New York Zoological Park. The bison were packed in crates, 12 miles to the new fenced range, and at the range the animals were placed in one of the buildings and were liberated after a day's captivity to acquaint them with their new surroundings.

POLITICIANS, NOW PAYING FARE, WILL GIVE UP $10,000

Will Aid in Offsetting Reduced Tariff.

WICHITA, Kan., Oct. 22.—This year every delegate to the State political convention will be confronted with the necessity of paying the railway fare. The railways have announced that the day of passes come ancient history when the 2-cent rate went into effect. Delegates to political conventions in Kansas heretofore generally were supplied with free transportation by the obliging railroads.

A conservative estimate of the average amount delegates to the State convention would be called upon to pay for railway fares should the convention be held in Wichita is $10 each. There were 140 delegates at the Republican State convention at Topeka last year and about the same number at the Democratic convention. This means that at the next State Republican convention the railways will get over $200 from the politicians.

Double this amount for the Democratic convention and the railways will derive a profit of over $10,000. This doesn't include the other crowd of lobbyists who will attend.

STOCKS MUCH LOWER AT NOON HOUR

Gains of Monday Are Wiped Out by the Sudden Slump.

WEAKNESS IS GENERAL

Recessions Said to Be Due to Troubles of Knickerbocker Bank.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22, 10 a. m.—The market opened this morning with a sharp decline all around. Yesterday's gains were practically wiped out, and in some cases more than wiped out. For instance, Union Pacific's low point Monday was 114 1/2, and today it opened at 114.

Canadian Pacific went as low as 156 1/2, and Tuesday's opening for the day was 156, representing a net loss between the close and opening of 1 1/2 points. Reading was another weak starter, opening with a loss of 3 1/2 points from its closing figures of Monday.

Other major recessions in the rails were Southern Pacific 2 1/2, Northern Pacific 2, Great Northern 2 1/2, Atchafalaya, B. & N. T. 2 1/2, Missouri Pacific 2 1/2, Pennsylvania 1 1/2, St. Paul 1 1/2, New York Central 1 1/2, and L. & N. 1 point.

These figures represent the losses between Monday's close and Tuesday's opening. Similar recessions were noted in the industrial division, especially in the copper. Amalgamated and Smelter's average were nearly 3 points, and steel was a point down.

In the first half hour of trading, however, there was a slight improvement noted in several of the most important and active of the issues.

Knickerbocker Bank troubles, so swiftly following that of the Mercantile, and with which it is said to have some indirect connection, are given as the main reasons for the slump at the opening of business Tuesday. There is no reason to doubt, however, that the troubles of the Knickerbocker will not be adjusted as rapidly and quickly as that of the Mercantile.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22, 12:30 p. m.—The slump which was apparent at the opening of the market today developed into a severe recession by the time the noon hour was reached. Liquidation continued on a more extensive scale. The situation was accentuated by the pronounced weakness of American securities in London. In addition the air was full of rumors of impending calamity at certain financial institutions in New York.

It was the same old bear tactics that has so frequently been followed with such disastrous results.

All the leading issues in both divisions of the exchange suffered severely. COLONEL OFFERS HIS LIFE STORY FOR ONE BATH

The Hon. Edmund Burke Wearies of Unwashed Days in Holdover.

CONFESSES FORGERIES

Police Decide He Doesn't Tell Enough and Deny Him a Plunge.

Colonel, the Honorable Edmund Burke, who has been in the holdover at the Four Courts, the accommodations there are not what he has formerly enjoyed and Tuesday morning he offered to trade a partial confession for access to a bath tub.

"I'll come in just a little bit," he said, "don't you think you will transfer me to the jail?"

"Mooney said he would see about it, and he referred the matter to Assistant Chief of Detectives McCarthy, who sent for 'Colonel' etc."

The prisoner began his life history by saying that he had served six months in the jail at Seattle, Wash., for forgery.

"Under what name?" asked McCarthy. "I was known there as Col. Sir Henry Lynch-Blosse," was the answer. He refused to elucidate the forgery transaction further. "That is the only police record I have," he asserted.

"But is that the only trick you have turned?" asked McCarthy.

"Now, you are really asking too much," said Burke. "I have told you my police record and it really is not important what else I may have done. Do I get that bath?"

"We will see," said McCarthy and he continued his questions.

Burke finally admitted that he had got $90 from a Mrs. Melville, a prominent society woman of Denver, and had also got $200 on two checks from Dr. R. R. Blair, who introduced him to Miss Letitia Rosand Bell, who he married and brought here. McCarthy did not think that the information he got was particularly valuable and he sent Burke back to the holdover without a chance to take the coveted bath.

Mrs. Burke has returned to the home of her father, a physician living in Decatur, Ill.

PIPE THROUGH CAR FLOOR HURTS BABY

Fifteen-Foot Lead Tube Hurl'd by Axle Strikes Strap Rail Near Roof.

Mrs. William R. Molisee of 7106 Colorado avenue and Miss Anne Clark of 1020 Blow street narrowly escaped serious injury in a peculiar accident on a north-bound Bellefontaine car, when a piece of leadpipe which had been run over by the car twisted its way through the flooring and tore through the seat between them. Irene, the 20-month-old daughter of Mrs. Molisee, was struck in the forehead by the pipe, and a severe bruise was inflicted.

The car had just passed the corner of Meramec and California avenues, when it ran over the pipe, 15 feet long, which had been left on the track. The pipe was wound round the wheels, and one end struck the car floor, crashing through with great force. The revolving car wheels continued to drive it upward. It passed between Mrs. Molisee and Miss Clark, missing each of them by a few inches, and broke the strap rail at the top of the car.

YOUNG BRANDES ARRESTED FOR KILLING FATHER

Coroner's Jury, After All-Night Session, Decides Son Fired Fatal Shot.

BROTHER IS WITNESS

Declares Shot Was Fired After Parent Had Threatened Young Man.

The Coroner's jury that inquired into the killing of August D. Brandes, Jr., a week ago in Granite City, returned a verdict Tuesday morning, after an all-night session, saying that he died from a pistol wound inflicted by his son, Eckerd Brandes. The player was immediately arrested and taken to Edwardsville.

Eckerd Brandes was present during the inquest, but made no statement. Mrs. Elizabeth Lohbeck, a relative of the Brandes family, said that she was at a party at the home of August D. Brandes, Sr., on the afternoon before the shooting.

She said that August, Jr., went to the house in a quarrelsome mood. He went away and returned three times and made threats to kill his daughter, Blanche, 19 years old, and then shoot himself.

Henry Koeneke, a brother-in-law of the slain man, testified that he spent several hours with Brandes during the afternoon and evening and was with him at the time of the shooting. He said that Brandes had been drinking heavily and was extremely quarrelsome, frequently displaying a revolver and threatening to kill himself and others. He was unable to tell exactly how the shooting was done, as at the time he thought Brandes had discharged his own revolver in an effort to frighten his son.

Harry Brandes, the dead man's son, told a similar story. He said that he had vainly tried to get his father to go to bed and had later cautioned Eckerd to keep his father at home to prevent the possibility of his being robbed, as the father had a large sum of money.

Harry said he was looking out of a window and saw the shooting plainly. He said that his brother fired after his father had threatened him and had put his hand in his pocket as if to draw a weapon.

NOTICE OF ESCAPE 5 DAYS LATE

Police Wanted to Deliver L. P. Rodgers to County Officer.

Five days after Louis P. Rodgers, serving a term in the Workhouse for swindling, escaped from that institution, the police received notice of his act. The police were chagrined, because they had promised Marshal Seerest of Kirkwood to turn Rodgers over to him when the local Workhouse sentence was ended.

Rodgers posed as a sewing machine agent and was convicted of collecting "deposits" on machines that never were delivered, both in St. Louis and in Kirkwood. He escaped from the Workhouse quarry, where he was a trustee, on Oct. 17. The police received notice of this by mail Tuesday.

HORSE, PROVOKED BY BIG AUTO, KICKS IT TO PIECES

A horse at Jerseyville, Ill., a venerable saddle horse with a supreme contempt for new-fangled inventions, has won a laurel wreath by kicking to pieces a snorting auto. He is now the hero of all the countryside.

The heroic deed belongs to George Wilson, who was astride him on State street Monday. The auto of Alex C. Robb was just behind the horse, which finally lost patience, and when the auto stopped for a moment the mitting Dobbin backed up to it and let fly with his heels in a manner that would have caused a Missouri mule to turn green with envy.

Bang! Crash! Crash! Bang! Wow! First the dashboard was knocked to a piece of junk. The lamps were smashed into a thousand splinters. Then the hood fell incolorously and was sent rattling to the curb. After that Dobbin cooled down, turning and eyeing the battered machine with an air of satisfaction.

And if ever a horse smiled, Dobbin did as he pranced proudly up the street while the auto was led, limping, to the repair shop.

FARMER DREAMS HE SEES BODY OF GIRL IN RIVER

So Impressed Is He That He Arouses Neighbor and They Go to River.

GLASGOW, Ky., Oct. 19.—A farmer's strange dream has led to the recovery of the body of pretty Mary Thompson, who was drowned with her father, Abe Thompson, in Barren River. His body was recovered shortly after the drowning, but finding of the body was given up as hopeless until John Wood, a farmer, living a mile from the place of the accident, had this strange dream.

Wood dreamed that he was fishing at a small island 30 feet below a ford, and, becoming thirsty, he got on his hands and knees to drink from the river. Just as his lips were touching the water he was horrified to see the body of a young woman in plain view, almost under his face. The "sight" gave him such a shock that he awoke.

For some time he studied over the dream, which was so realistic he could not forget it. Unable to shake off the nervous feeling, Wood arose, dressed, lighted a lantern and went to a neighbor's house, where he related his dream.

He induced the neighbor to go with him to the ford. With a shift they rowed to the island, and at the very spot seen in his dream they found the body, barely covered with water.

FIRE CAUSES PANIC IN SCHOOL

Des Peres (Mo.) Children Knocked Down in Rush for Doors.

Fire in the general store of E. J. Hart at Des Peres, Mo., caused a panic among the children in the public school, 25 feet from the burning building. The fire was discovered in the feed store, in the rear of the general store, just before school was dismissed Monday afternoon.

Some of the younger pupils who had left the building ran back into the schoolhouse to warn their companions and there was a rush for the
